Skinny Skribbles

Around And About Town

With C. F. (Skinny) SKIRVIN

Lee Chamness, member of the Huntington Beach city council, forwards to my address, complimentary admission to the pavilion, where the public is given opportunity to display fersichorean skill, if any. The courtesy is appreciated, but Lee is about forty years too late to get a demonstration so far as my talent is concerned. In the days of my physical flexibility, I used to push a wicked foot time has slowed down the movement to a largo, and even that is sometimes a little rapid. I was "Born to Dance," but there was a limitation as to time. However, the pleasure isn't all the dancers'. The atmosphere, the refined setting, supplemented by the Pacific and excellent music, makes a visit to the pavilion worth money it costs you to indulge.

Labor Day cards are appearing in display windows. That's the day when the greater part of labor isn't working. It's a labor day when you rest. Sounds cockeyed, but it's so.

There is no limitation to this candidate service. I'm running, unless door space becomes exhausted. Found a place for Orlen W. Sisson, who craves a spot in the gallery of fame. Orlen is willing to collect the money for the county, if you are willing to elect him tax collector. You see it's to be a mutual proposition. However, that's the voter's decision. But I make the decisions for the candidate's bulletin board and so far everybody has been treated fairly and impartially. After the primaries I may impose a one-cent each penalty to get the office door polished.

It must have been the heat. Met him coming down town singing, "When My Dream Boat Comes Home," and I didn't have the heart to wake him up. His dream boat is just as likely to come home as mine is, and I threw my schedule away long ago.

The illustration on the frontispiece of The California Citrusgraph for August is comparable to the crop. It is of more than usual size. If everybody was eating oranges and drinking orange juice in proportion to the illustration the bumper crop would soon be consumed. The cold fact remains the public isn't doing so. There's an improvement, however, so let's not give up hope.

There's a town in Scotland called Ecclefechan, but I'll bet dollars to doughnuts with the holes taken out of 'em, that you can't pronounce it after Alex Brownridge gives you the right pronunciation. There is a peculiar twist of the tongue necessary in order to get the authorized Scottish sound. What brought this all about was a card Alex received Tuesday from Clarence Gustin who visited the place made famous by Thomas Carlyle, which shows the old Carlyle home, High street, Ecclefechan from the Hags, and the Hoddon bridge. It is also the old home town of Alex's relatives, which brings Santa Ana in with the rest of the famous.

Lewis Olivos, an employee of the Princess theater, collecting candidate cards and has a flock of them on the bulletin board at the theatre. He has supplemented some of the qualifications and inducements, and on Johnny Lamb's card added: "A chop for every vote."

One by one the registration continues. An out-of-towner comes in town to get listed among those running for office. George Holden, from Anaheim, has his eye cast toward the office of district attorney. There is no incompatibility between him and Tom McFadden, of whose office he is a part, but he seeks the more strenuous life and believes he can get it if he gets into the D. A.'s office. So I have officially listed him in the candidate gallery.

Woolen blanket display during midsummer and an advertisement for orchard heaters may appear unseasonable, but it is just a hint to the wise.

Elmer B. Deupree, formerly of the Seal Beach Wave and Post, and with other newspaper experience, now located in the Silverado canyon, has a civil aspiration. He wants to be justice of the peace of Orange township. Elmer, when I first knew him, edited the Capistrano newspaper. Stuck to the ink until his health weakened. Then into the recesses of the mountains where the air is bracing and invigorating. The politics can take care of itself, but I am on his side when it

LABOR ACCUSES REPUBLIC STEEL Laguna Liquor License Debated

'FILTHIEST INDUSTRIAL CESSPOOL'

WASHINGTON. (P)—Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers' organizing committee, charged today that the Republic Steel corporation is the filthiest industrial cesspool of labor relations in America.

The gray, partly bald steel union leader made his carefully worded charge in testimony before the senate civil liberties committee investigating the "little steel" strike of 1937.

Murray charged that the Republic firm, previously mentioned in testimony as having aided in financing the activities of citizens organizations opposing CIO activities, dominated groups fighting the SWOC.

"The Republic Steel corporation," Murray charged, "created, maintained, dominated and financed every known kind of agency that could be created to prevent the organization of steel workers into unions."

Murray testified that the Committee for Industrial Organization contributed about $1,500,000 to finance the organizing campaign, launched in June, 1936.

"It's object is to bring about a peaceful organization of the workers into 'independent, legitimate unions.'"

James A. Reinhardt told the investigators earlier that steel officials were not invited to participate in a labor stabilization campaign carried on through newspaper advertising in Canton, Ohio, in the summer of 1936.

Reinhardt, vice president of the Canton Development corporation, said 18 civic organizations sponsored a series of advertisements prepared by the MacDonald-Cook advertising agency of South Bend, Ind.

Previously, the committee heard testimony that similar advertisements, carried in newspapers in other Ohio cities in the "little steel" area, had been financed largely by contributions from steel companies.

The witness said the Canton Development corporation originated the movement which resulted in the insertion of the ads. It received a $5000 contribution from Republic Steel corporation in a three-year period ending last June, he said.

Lupe Figueroa, county jail prisoner who walked calmly out of a courtroom last week and was free for 15 minutes before frantic deputy sheriffs recaptured him, today was sent to the county hospital for a mental examination.

Superior Judge James L. Allen ordered examination of Figueroa by Dr. Franklin Van Meter of Norwalk state hospital before the prisoner is arraigned on grand theft charges.

Figueroa once was ordered sent to the hospital for a sanity test, but something got mixed up and physicians examined the wrong man.

The prisoner is accused of stealing a strawberry truck from Y. Kubo of Stanton on June 21. Last week, tiring of court procedure which did not affect him, he walked out of the jury box, past court attaches and half a hundred spectators, and was gone.

He was finally recaptured and as he sauntered down West Fifth street half a mile away from the courthouse.

Mamma Jacobs to Stay in State and Sue for Divorce

HOLLYWOOD. (P)—John Barrymore's mother-in-law likes Hollywood so well that she's going to divorce her New York husband.

Mrs. Edna (Mamma) Jacobs, who has managed the Barrymore menage since daughter Elaine became a bride, said today she no longer cares to be legally bound to Louis (Papa) Jacobs, the clothier she married more than 20 years ago.

"My whole heart is here with Elaine and John, while my husband's business is in New York," she explained.

CHARLOTTE BACON FIRST IN JOURNAL COURTESY CONTEST

In recognition of service rendered the public in the line of duty, Journal readers recently nominated 110 persons as the most courteous and efficient employees in Orange county. Voting for this select group followed.

Nearly five million votes were cast before the contest closed last Saturday midnight. Eight of the nominees obtained nearly half of these. On recommendation of The Journal readers, therefore, these eight persons will be awarded the prizes offered at the beginning of the race.

Votes cast for the top eight range all the way from 181,000 to 528,650. Three runners-up had standings in the 100,000 classification and a fourth person missed this mark by a mere 3650 tallies. Honorable mention, therefore, is in order for the following persons: Evelyn Bishop, waitress Rossmore cafe, ninth place with 141,350 votes; Russell "Red" Gundren, vegetable man, Alpha Beta Food Market, tenth, 128,050; Frank (Continued on Page 4, Col. 1)

100 FAMILIES FLEE BLAZE FIVE FREED FROM CAVEIN

SEATTLE. (P)—One hundred families fled before a great forest fire on Vancouver island today, abandoning their homes in the small settlements of head-quarters and Doug creek.

Police Constable C. Ramsey reported to headquarters at Victoria, however, that the settlements were in no immediate danger but that evacuation was ordered as a precautionary measure. He said the dangerous 50,000-acre blaze had approached to within two or three miles of the villages.

Sabotage in British Columbia and incendiarism in Washington state and Oregon were considered the chief obstacles to a successful fight against the devouring fires in Pacific Northwest forests.

The situation throughout the Pacific Northwest was reported the "most critical in recent years." Low humidity and rising temperatures added to the difficulty.

Palacio Sex Trial Set for Sept. 19

Juan Palacio, Santa Ana laborer, will face trial in superior court Sept. 19 on charges of two sex crimes against a 12-year-old girl.

Palacio pleaded not guilty today before Superior Judge James L. Allen, who set the trial date. The prisoner is held under $1000 bond. He is charged with committing the offenses March 5.

Flood Menaces Texas Sheep Area

BRADY, Tex. (P)—Floodwaters from normally small streams, made raging torrents by rainfall measuring up to nearly 10 inches, threatened the Southwest Texas sheep country today.

German Catapult Flying Boat Completes Atlantic Crossing

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. (P)—Germany's 19-ton catapult flying boat, Nordmeer, alighted on the water at this transatlantic airport at 8:42 a. m., EST, today after a non-stop flight of 2387 miles across the Atlantic from the Azores in 17 hours, 42 minutes.

It had been tossed into the air at a speed of about 110 miles an hour at 3 p. m., EST, yesterday by its mother ship, the Schwabenland, at Horta, the Azores. The Nordmeer averaged 133 miles per hour on the flight.

Nordmeer's transatlantic flight began just eight minutes before Great Britain's seaplane Mercury arrived here after another transatlantic flight.

The huge German plane, powered with four oil burning Diesel engines, passed over the Mercury as she came in to her landing.

In the harbor lay the German catapult ship Friesenland which, next week, will toss the Nordmeer out into the air on her homeward journey, completing the first of 14 roundtrip exploratory flights to New York planned by Lufthansa.

50 COLONY MEMBERS AT BOARD MEET

Fifty members of Laguna Beach's famed art colony flocked here this morning to hear testimony pro and con on whether one of Laguna's most colorful "spots" would lose its liquor license.

"Charges of disorderly conduct, singing, and peculiar actions by intoxicated persons near Mona's Studio club on South Coast boulevard were made by several witnesses as Judge Franklin Cole, examiner for the state board of equalization, conducted the hearing in the board of supervisors' room at the courthouse.

PASADENA COMPLAINS

Hearing on the threatened license revocation was set after a raid three weeks ago in which state board investigators said liquor had been sold to intoxicated persons and that the establishment was disorderly.

Arthur C. Thompson of Pasadena, who owns a summer home immediately behind the cafe, said there was an "awful lot of noise . . . dogs howling, beer cans rolling down the street . . . terrible singing of this 'do-de-da-da' all night long . . . my back yard is used for purposes I can't mention here . . ."

Mrs. E. Yens, neighbor, said she objected to crushing of her shrubbery by intoxicated persons lying on it.

"BUT DIFFERENT"

Francis X. McEachen of Los Angeles, owner of a summer home across the street, said he had frequented the cafe often and had no hesitancy about taking his mother there.

"The cafe is a little bit different," he said, "there are not the regular formalities and you are treated with friendship."

Further testimony on behalf of Mrs. Mona Harris, the licensee, was to be presented this afternoon, with Judge Cole taking the case under advisement for submission to the state board.

Hearing also was held into the case of Mrs. Goldie E. Evans, proprietor of the Shadybrook cafe in Silverado canyon, accused of permitting disorderly conduct.

PROBATION HEARINGS SET

Seven Wintersburg district youths, ranging in age from 18 to 21, who have admitted a long series of burglaries over the past two years, will have probation hearings next Friday in superior court.

They all entered guilty pleas today before Superior Judge James L. Allen and asked for probation. They face but one charge, that of burglarizing a pump house July 10 in six of the cases. The other defendant, Frank Contreras, is charged with breaking into the same pump house June 14.

The young prisoners are Contreras, Jay and Leo Kanawyer, Claude Sievert, Ralph and Manuel Ortiz and Robert Ingersoll. An eighth prisoner, 16 years old, previously had been certified to juvenile court.

Insurgents Claim Key Defense Taken

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier) (P)—Insurgent dispatches reported today that government troops had been driven from the Espina mountains northwest of Segorbe, making it dangerous for Government General Jose Miaja to continue to hold the main highway to Valencia.

Segorbe, a key to Valencia, is 8½ miles southeast of Viver on the Teruel-Sagunto-Valencia road, which the insurgents' heavy artillery blasted, preventing the government from moving up munitions and supplies.

Next month, Air France, the French flying company, will start the first of five or six planned flights from Bordeaux to Port Washington.

The three foreign companies and Pan-American Airways, the American firm, are exchanging data on weather conditions and routes in preparation for the opening of regular airline service.

Discovery Of Auto In River Ends Mystery

Finding of the body and wrecked automobile of Fritz Burrill, Portland, Ore., lumber executive, in the Columbia river near Vancouver, Wash., solved the mystery of the man's disappearance. He had been missing more than a month. Above the auto after it had been lifted from the river, and Burrill's body as workmen prepared to remove it.

S. A. RIVER PROBLEM UP

SAN BERNARDINO. (P)—The Santa Ana river problem is regarded by Gov. Frank F. Merriam as the most serious in the state, Earl J. Kelly, director of public works, said today.

"The governor has determined," said Kelly, "that the Santa Ana river flood problem must be solved by a unified program supported by the three counties involved, San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange."

"He asked me to request the representatives of these three counties to agree on a program and submit it to the state. He believes the cost will be between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000."

Kelly said that while no such sum as five million dollars is available for such a project out of funds the legislature can provide, a start can be made in that direction.

Hunt's Probation Extended 18 Mos.

Extension of probation for 18 months was granted today to John Edward Hunt of Santa Ana, arrested on a probation violation charge filed three years ago.

Hunt had been granted probation on drunk driving charges in April, 1934. While on probation, he assertedly became intoxicated and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest in 1935. Finally apprehended this year, he was brought into court and his probation period extended by Superior Judge James L. Allen.

Committee Named On Courthouse Plan

Preliminary campaigning by the Santa Ana Realty board to secure a new Orange county courthouse went forward a step today when Ray Goodcell, president of the realtors, named a five-man committee to investigate the proposed plan.

John A. Harvey will head the group, which includes W. B. Martin, Herb Allemen, Frank Pope and Rex Kennedy.

Today's Realty board meeting in the Rossmore cafe was devoted to informal discussion of technical real estate points.

Decision Near in Dollar Line Case

WASHINGTON. (P)—Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, said today subsidy negotiations with the Dollar Steamship lines at San Francisco had "gotten down to details," and that he hoped for some decision next week.

It has been reported recently that the maritime commission might take over the Dollar company, which operates California-Orient and around the world services.

DEMOCRACIES MAY AID NAZIS

Britain, France and Germany May Renew Friendship

PARIS. (P)—The close French-British alliance demonstrated by King George's visit may have paved the way for a renewal of friendship between the two western democracies and Nazi Germany.

Cautious optimism to that effect prevailed in French diplomatic circles today as the British monarch concluded his four-day stay with dedication of the Australian World war memorial erected on a battlefield near Villers-Bretonneux.

The optimistic feeling was based on two things—the reported offer of German Chancellor Adolf Hitler to work out a compromise settlement of dispute over Czechoslovakia and Central Europe, and a belief the three powers were ready to discuss some sort of understanding on military aviation.

MESSAGE TO HITLER

LONDON. (P)—Prime Minister Chamberlain was reliably reported today to have given Chancellor Hitler's ambassador a personal message for the German Fuehrer in response to the latter's recent assurances of peaceful aims in Europe.

Chamberlain had a long conference at Ten Downing street with Dr. Herbert Von Dirksen, the German ambassador, who is leaving for Berlin tomorrow on vacation. The message was understood to have been given then.

The ambassador's visit indicated that the British prime minister planned quick action to follow up Hitler's peace gesture in sending Captain Fritz Wiedemann, his confidential envoy, here with a message delivered to Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary.

KING SPEAKS

VILLERS-BRETONNEAUX, France. (P)—King George of England again informed the world today that Britain and France are bound by unbreakable ties.

"In a speech dedicating a memorial to Austria's World war dead, the concluding event of his four-day stay of state to France, the king said:

"The events we recall today have bound us with ties that the passing years can never weaken."

"This assurance was given in addition to his statement in his speech the first night of his Paris stay:

"It would now be impossible to recall a period in which our relations were more intimate."

Republicans Charge Hopkins Launching 3rd Term Move For F.D.R.

WPA DIRECTOR AVERTS DIRECT QUESTIONS

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Harry Hopkins' assertion that 90 per cent of federal relief recipients favor the Roosevelt administration aroused today a Republican cry of "launching the Roosevelt third-term movement."

The WPA administrator told reporters yesterday the reason for the relief workers' attitude was that "we're the only crowd that has anything constructive to offer."

John Hamilton, Republican national chairman, immediately called his remarks evidence of an effort by the Roosevelt administration to "perpetuate itself in power."

Chairman Sheppard (D., Texas) of the senate campaign investigating committee said he would study the matter.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Joseph B. Keenan, an assistant to the attorney general, had made cryptic references to third-term possibilities during a speech at a Virginia political rally.

"There is much loose comment today concerning candidates for the presidency," said Keenan, one of the administrator's political counselors.

"From time to time the question is asked, will so-and-so seek office or attempt to succeed himself? It seems to me that this is thinking in reverse. Individuals do not choose to be President of the United States. Presidents are chosen by the people."

Questions about a third term for Mr. Roosevelt were put to Hopkins at a press conference. He turned them aside.

Hamilton, however, asserted Hopkins was referring to the 1940 presidential race in his general statements about WPA voters.

"If Mr. Hopkins did not have in the back of his mind an intention to promote Mr. Roosevelt for a third term," Hamilton said, "why did he make such a statement?"

"In view of this development reasons become clearer for the constant increase of the federal relief rolls—now reaching a new high record—and the failure of the Roosevelt administration to take steps to stimulate private industry."

"Obviously the Roosevelt administration is seeking to perpetuate itself in power through the use of relief funds, because as the President said in 1936, 'every message in a pay envelope, even if it is the truth, is a command to vote according to the will of the employer.'"

F. D. R. HEADS FOR SCENE OF TROPIC DEATHS

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, EN ROUTE TO PANAMA. (AP)—President Roosevelt's vacation fishing cruise led him today toward the Galapagos islands, locale of one of the strangest mystery death stories ever to come out of the tropics.

A voyage of 1300 miles lay ahead of the Houston when she left Clipperton island yesterday, her refrigerators overflowing with fish the President and his party caught in a five-hour expedition.

Also aboard the warship was new information concerning the location of Clipperton, 675 miles off Acapulco, Mexico, but one mile southeast of its present charted position, according to observations taken by Captain G. N. Barker, commander of the Houston.

Specimens of the volcanic island's bird, animal and marine life were gathered by Professor Waldo Schmitt of the Smithsonian institution while the President fished and three navy planes surveyed the island and surrounding waters from the air.

The weird death story of the Galapagos, lying along the equator 500 miles west of Ecuador, involves a supposed paradise once ruled by a German baroness, whose regal garments were a sun tan and a pair of pink silk panties.

In 1934, the bodies of two men who had died of thirst were found on bleak Marchena island, one of the Galapagos group.

They were identified as Arthur Rudolph Lorenz, former Parisian, and a Norwegian sailor named Nuggerod. Lorenz was known to have lived in a colony of Charles Island headed by the Baroness Eloise de Wagner.

NEWPORT GIRL WINS AWARD

NEWPORT-BALBOA. (AP)—Miss Dee Williamson, daughter of Mayor H. H. Williamson of Newport, has been awarded a certificate of merit by the Red Cross national committee on awards for saving the life of William Erskine Jones here last Oct. 11, it was learned here today.

Miss Williamson learned of the honor from Laura K. Warren, executive secretary of the local chapter of the Red Cross. She also received notification from the national chapter. Presentation of the award will be made later, it was announced.

Miss Williamson saved young Jones when he drifted unconscious under a barge in Newport Bay after being struck on the head by a flying windlass handle. He undoubtedly would have drowned if the Newport swimmer had not pulled his body from beneath the float, life-saving officials said.

Sailors' Chief to See AFL President

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—Harry Lundberg, big Norse secretary of the sailors' union of the Pacific, said he would go to Washington next week to talk with William Green on the SUP bid for an AFL charter for all unlicensed seamen on both coasts.

The West Coast sailors' chief said the charter, which would throw him into direct conflict with the CIO national maritime union in the East and the CIO marine cooks and inland boatmen in the West, was "all set to go."

Japanese About to Capture Kiukiang

SHANGHAI. (AP)—Foreign military observers predicted today the imminent Japanese capture of Kiukiang, defenses of which have been battered by three weeks of relentless bombing.

Authoritative information was that Japanese warships were able to approach Kiukiang, strategic city 135 miles down the Yangtze river from Hankow, whenever desired, to deliver the final assault with planes and ships.

COUNTY STILL AWAITS LEVEE REPAIR MONEY

Orange county's long-hoped-for money for rebuilding the flood-ravaged Santa Ana river levees still reposed in the state treasury today, with official silence as to what has happened to the county's plea for state funds.

Meanwhile county supervisors paved the way for levee reconstruction—with state money when it arrives—by transferring $100,000 from the unbudgeted reserve fund to the county general fund, where it can be used for securing easements and rights-of-way necessary before the levees can be built.

Chairman Willard Smith told the board, meeting in special session today, that he had received no word yet from Sacramento on the Orange county appropriation.

Five million dollars was set aside by the legislature immediately after the March 3 flood for relief to flood-stricken counties. So far nothing has happened except compiling of voluminous reports. Local officials were promised immediate action nearly two weeks ago.

TWO BADLY INJURED WHEN AUTOS CRASH

Joe V. Romero, 34, Rose street, Anaheim, is believed to have a concussion of the brain and Pasqual Rosolda, 516 Lemon street, Anaheim, may have a fractured pelvis as the result of an intersection crash occurring at 9 a. m. today at Sunlight avenue and Wagner road, two miles southeast of Anaheim.

The men were passengers in a truck which collided with another such carrier. Frank Sanchez, 45, 329 Melrose, Anaheim, was operator of one of the vehicles, and Arthur Henning, 28, box 243, route 3, Anaheim, driver of the other. The injured passengers were taken to the Orange county hospital.

Shortly after noon today Jere M. Courtney, 53, of San Diego was struck by a truck driven by Robert Murata, 23, of Escondido. Courtney, according to his wife, was standing near their car which was parked on the south side of Chapman road, west of the Santa Ana river bridge, when the mishap occurred. Extent of his injuries had not been determined at an early hour this afternoon. He was taken to the Orange county hospital.

Hoboes Live in Luxury on Cruiser as It Is Shipped Across U. S. by Railroad

NEWPORT-BALBOA. — Ordinary box-cars apparently were not good enough for some bums—two, perhaps more—who rode into California from New York this week.

When company workmen began unloading a 32-ft. Wheeler cruiser, which had been shipped from New York to Newport Beach for delivery to the South Coast company this week, they discovered that "chiselers" had forced their way through the forward hatch into the boat, and lived aboard in luxury during the 3000-mile railroad journey.

Light bulbs and reflectors had been removed and dashed on the floor. Spark plugs on both engines had been smashed, as well as the coil and generator switch on the starboard motor. Both throttles on the dash had been jiggled. Pillows and upholstery were soiled and the upper cushion of the forward bunk slashed. Tables in the cabin had been dented and scarred by the bums in using them to make their berths.

Russians Tell Japan They'll Move Troops As They Wish

TOKYO DEMAND REJECTED BY MOSCOW

MOSCOW (P)—Soviet Russia made clear in plain words today she will move troops as she sees fit along her far eastern frontier, but that if there is to be war, the matter Japan will have to start it. This, to foreign circles here, appeared unlikely.

The Russian government's sharp rejection of Japanese demands for withdrawal of troops in territory claimed by both nations, from the Sea of Japan simply called Tokyo's bluff.

The next move was left squarely up to Japan.

The Russian stand was set forth last night in a communique detailing Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinov's reply to representations to the Japanese ambassador, Maru Shigenitsu.

The disputed territory is near the junction of Siberia, Manchoukuo and Japanese Korea, and of troop movements there the communique said.

The Japanese demand for withdrawal of the troops was rejected as "unjustified and unacceptable," since Russia regards the territory involved as Russian.

TOKYO (P)—Statements of Japanese spokesmen tonight indicated Japan had no intention of forcing the issue with Soviet Russia over Soviet troops' occupation of a disputed district near where the borders of Soviet Siberia, Japanese Korea and Manchoukuo come together.

Nevertheless, the Tokyo press continued to report concentration of Soviet military and naval forces near the danger zone.

Tatsuo Kawai, the foreign office spokesman, denied Japan ever had threatened to use force to eject the Russian troops from the Changkufeng district, occupation of which July 11 provoked the blustery crisis.

General Kuniaki Koiso, former commander of Japan's Korean army, also minimized the Changkufeng incident on arriving in Tokyo from the continent.

"I don't consider this affair serious," he said. He expressed belief that Soviet troops unwittingly had crossed the border and then remained "because the internal situation (of Russia) was such that the slightest concession on the part of the Kremlin would be too dangerous."

The political sage, asked for an opinion, said so far the campaign was confined to the candidates, who were making a personal appeal and appearance. That the organization work has not appeared, and maybe it wouldn't until after the primary.

The successful candidates in The Journal's efficiency and popularity contest know as much about it now as I do. There was an understanding between certain aspirants that I had a chance to share the vacation trips, but that's out. The candidates making the proposition failed to finish in the money.

This new proposed federal hospitalization service may still be in time to give me a run, for the money I haven't got. That's the only way you can qualify.

Pipe Break Speeds Man to Pay Bill

KANSAS CITY, Kas. (P)—While employees of the municipal water and light department worked anxiously to repair a break which deprived the city of water and electricity a breathless customer paid two months delinquent bills.

The customer said he believed his service had been disconnected. He left several patrons waiting in his nearby restaurant while he squared accounts.

NEVILLS EXPLORERS ON FINAL STRETCH
GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (P)—The Nevills Colorado river expedition sped down the roaring stream today on the final stretch of its perilous voyage to Lake Mead.

Two women and five men launched their three boats at the foot of Bright Angel creek and announced they expected to travel the 247 miles to Boulder dam in eight days.

Candidates Prodded at Meet Of Builders Exchange Held In Allison Honer's Home

Orange county's candidates seeking election at the August primaries can take it. They proved this last night at the Builders' exchange dinner meeting conducted in the patio of Allison Honer's picturesque residence on West Santa Clara avenue.

There, beneath a spreading 60-year-old pepper tree, a dozen county candidates were the targets of pointed remarks about politicians. It was all in fun, of course.

The warmest debate of the evening occurred between Judge H. G. Ames, incumbent; Judge J. B. Tucker and James L. Davis, all of whom seek election to division one of the superior court.

Judge Ames admitted he was entering a "political" not a "candidate," but simply sought reelection. He was the first one of this group of nominees called to speak. Taking advantage of this fact, J. B. Tucker quoted the Bible freely and played upon the old adage, "The first shall be last and the last shall be first," to emphasize his point as to how he felt the election may go.

Davis climaxed the other two talks by affirming that the ambition of all lawyers is to become a judge. Then he emphasized that Judge Ames is already a judge; that Judge Tucker has been a judge and that "I intend to be a judge."

Judge Tucker's reference to the Biblical phrase was the incentive for a barrage of quotations from the famous book. One of the most amusing quotations brought forth was: "Many are called, but few are chosen."

Mayor C. T. Johnson of San Bernardino, seeking the Republican nomination as congressman from the 15th district, was the only candidate outside the county appearing at last night's display of political talent. He was introduced to the 150 persons present by George Wells, president of the Santa Ana school board.

Johnson had another engagement, left early, before the political fireworks started.

Deadlocked eight to four, a superior court jury was discharged last night when it was unable to agree on a verdict in the $30,466.33 accident death suit of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton C. Boucher against Miss Grace DeBarard of Laguna Beach.

Reported standing eight to four in favor of the plaintiffs, the jury deliberated from 11 a. m. to 8:45 p. m. yesterday before Superior Judge Raymond McIntosh of Sierra county, sitting in department three of superior court here, discharged it. The case will be tried again, but a date has not yet been fixed.

The Bouchers, represented by A. P. G. Steffes of Los Angeles and Milburn Harvey of Santa Ana, asked the damages for death of their 20-year-old son, Dallas Wilton Boucher, in an auto accident last Feb. 19, 191 highway and Central avenue near La Habra.

Miss DeBarard was represented by Fred Forgy of Santa Ana.

ONE SNAG HIT IN CONTRACT FOR BIG DAM

One snag today remained to be ironed out before county supervisors can award a $241,000 contract for relocation of the Santa Fe railroad and Santa Ana canyon highway near Prado dam.

Supervisors heard today that Person and Hollingsworth and Wilbur C. Cole of Los Angeles, low bidders on the relocation job, wanted to be sure they could get an extension of time if easements for the work are not obtained by the time the contractors reach disputed parcels of land.

B. Z. McKinney, special counsel for the board of flood control matters, told supervisors only approximately half a mile of ground, on the far end of the project, still will be in doubt by next Tuesday, on which date the contract must be awarded. Court proceedings will be necessary to get a right-of-way over that land, he said.

An agreement providing for a time extension for the contractors may be signed Tuesday. The highway and railroad will be moved to make way for the $7,000,000 Prado dam, on which construction is to begin this fall.

Boy, 10, Disappears From Hospital on Eve of Operation

LOS ANGELES (P)—Ten-year-old Bobby Slauson hadn't been looking forward with any pleasure to his impending operation for removal of his tonsils and adenoids.

His mother, Mrs. Ruth Schmidt, took him to Children's hospital yesterday for the performance. Just before he was to go into the operating room, he innocently asked if he might go to the bathroom.

He went, and that was the last anybody saw of him until 11 o'clock last night, when police picked him up on Hollywood boulevard.

The operation has been rescheduled.

Campaign Costs 3c; And That for Stamp
OKLAHOMA CITY.—J. O. Ferguson, Republican nominee for governor, filed his report of campaign expenditures—three cents—under protest.

He protested because the expense was not incurred until after the primary. The three cents was for a stamp to mail his affidavit of expenditures.

Police News

Ira D. Farris, 31, Bakersfield, was arrested by Santa Ana police on a drunk-driving charge yesterday, and lodged in the county jail.

Tools and a tool tray, with a total value of $65, were stolen from his shop, 201 North Main street, this week, Glenn Marr reported to police yesterday.

From 150 to 200 persons are housed in a second-story building on West Fourth street, with only a narrow stairs and one fire escape leading to the dwelling, an unsigned postal card informed police today. "We know of no such place," Asst. Chief Harry Fink said. "The unsigned complaint is too inaccurate to check."

A woman walked out from the curb and was struck lightly by his car as he was backing in Santa Ana business district yesterday, Frank Shadley, 428 West Santa Clara, told police.

SALICA FIGHTS AT GILMORE

HOLLYWOOD (P)—Brooklyn Lou Salica comes back to a Hollywood prize ring after a long absence tonight, clashing in a 10-round bout with the newest local featherweight favorite, Emilio Magana, at Gilmore stadium.

The Los Angeles Mexican, stablemate of Ceferino Garcia, strode into the limelight with a two-round knockout recently over popular Johnny Brown, unbeaten at the time.

Victory tonight over Salica, long rated one of the best of the lighter fellows, would mean a great deal to Magana. Salica ranks high as a bantamweight, but will go in heavier tonight to meet Magana's usual 125-pound weight.

Wrote C. A. Green, Republican, to Ed McKim, Democrat: "I certainly wish you the best of luck, and I can assure you that nothing will be said or done by me against my friend, Ed McKim."

Replied McKim: "... I want you to know that the sentiments are reciprocated... Best of luck."

The exchange followed similar pleasantries between Clarence Reckmyer, Republican, and Phil Tomek, Democrat.

8 WINNERS IN JOURNAL RACE MADE PUBLIC

Cagle, assistant county jailer; eleventh, 124,000, and Ida Mae Jones, saleslady and cashier, Sontag Drug store, twelfth, 96,350.

One of the outstanding characteristics of the contest was the spirit of fair play predominating among the contestants and their friends.

Winners, runners-up and those with votes under the 80,000 mark have frequently admitted that the contest afforded them a lot of fun and enjoyment.

There is no doubt but what the 110 popular folks entered in the race had a large circle of friends prior to the opening of the contest. It is true also, and freely admitted by many nominees, that their acquaintances have been extended greatly during the race.

Another nominee stated, "Hundreds of customers who have come to the place I work have known me by sight only. Now they call me by my first name, because they have seen it connected with a picture The Journal published."

The eight top-notchers in the contest will receive their awards from the stage of The Broadway theater at 8:45 next Monday evening. Two feature attractions will be shown preceding and after the presentation. They are: "Algiers" starring Charles Boyer, Eddy Le-Marr and Sigrid Gurie; also "Blind Alibi," featuring Richard Dix.

Manager George King has invited the eight winners to see the show at the theater. Afterward they will be the guests of John Galanis, proprietor of The Charcoal Broiler, where they are to have a steak dinner.

Stop-Go Costs Would Pay for New Road Plan, Claim

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—An elaborate system of overhead highways for Los Angeles could be adequately financed from the savings on automobile stop-and-go wear and waste, says Lynn Atkinson, engineering contractor.

"It costs a cent or more every time a car in traffic is stopped and started again," he said. "If we estimate that drivers average 20 stops and restarts daily, the annual loss to the metropolitan citizenship is $36 per capita or over $18,000,000 total to the motorists of the city."

Spectacles were invented during the 13th century.

50 MILES OF WIRE UNITE FIREFIGHTERS

State Forester Joe Schorman looked on proudly today as the last link of Orange county's largest private telephone line system was spliced.

Last connections were made in the private firefighters' telephone line linking Orange headquarters of the state division of forestry with San Juan Capistrano and Trabuco substations.

Fifty miles of wire now link headquarters with all area stations in the county, providing instant communication in case of fires and must call for crews to extinguish them.

The lines have been laid over the past two years. Longest is the new line to the San Juan Capistrano station, now nearing completion. It is 20 miles long. Yorba Linda-Orange line, 14 miles long, was completed last year.

Over $2,500,000 worth of furs were sold at the March auction in Leningrad, Russia.

Girl Abandons Her Plan to Hitchhike To Montana Home

Hitchhiking from Santa Ana to Glasgow, Mont., wasn't such a good idea after all, 17-year-old Dorothy Bretzke apparently decided in canceling her plans, and returning to her mother, Mrs. Lou Bretzke, 334 East Camille street, yesterday.

Miss Bretzke, who had been vacationing here with her mother, left for Montana Wednesday noon, leaving a note: "I wanted some excitement and you didn't. Sorry I can't help you drive through Monday, but take it easy and you'll be all right."

The girl's return caused a sigh of relief for her mother, who had been contacting Santa Ana police in efforts to locate her daughter.

FOOTPRINTS BRING ARREST OF BURGLAR

His footprints under the window of his neighbor's house led to the arrest today of Jesse C. Partida, 24, 942 West Walnut street, by Detective Lieut. Charles Wolford and Patrolman Ralph Pantuso.

Taken before Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison this morning, Partida pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing $17 in dollar bills from the home of Guadalupe Garcia, 946 West Walnut street, last night.

While Garcia was away, the prowler entered the home between 8 p. m. and 10:30 p. m. by prying off a screen and entering a window. A plain footprint was traced by Officers Wolford and Pantuso, who questioned Partida until he admitted the charge with the remark, "I needed some money." He was to appear in superior court this afternoon for sentence.

KIWANIANS FISH AT SEA

Twenty-one sunburned Santa Ana Kiwanians were talking moderately-sized fish stories today as they enthusiastically relished yesterday's annual Kiwanis deep-sea fishing party.

The party, including a number of sons and daughters of Kiwanians, embarked from the Nineteenth street pier in Balboa island aboard the fishing boat Tilikum yesterday morning, returning in mid-afternoon.

Each of two jackpots—one for size, the other for number—had to be split because of ties. Orlyn Robertson, chairman for the outing, and Dorothy Raitt, daughter of Dr. G. Emmett Raitt, each hooked a seven-pound barracuda for first place in size, and Bud Steele and Archie Raitt caught 12 fish apiece to lead in numbers.

Corrigan Serves Notice On Girl Admirers That He Is A Flier and Not a Lover

DUBLIN. (AP)—Douglas G. Corrigan served notice on girl admirers today that he is a flier, not a lover.

"I can't get over the number of girls who seem to think because I flew the Atlantic I would make a perfect husband," said the California mechanic whose compass played tricks on him.

"I am not having any feminine entanglements yet in my young life," he added, as his fan mail grew into a huge stack. He is 31.

Corrigan went calling today on more officials, in the role of a sort of unofficial American ambassador. His first engagement was with Eire's police chief but still conscious of his lack of papers when he landed his $900 nine-year-old "crate" here Monday, he explained quickly: "He only wants to hear about my flight."

Still cold to offers of stage, screen and writing contracts, Corrigan declared: "I will see about that half million dollars which seems to be waiting to pour into my lap when I get home, but I refuse to commercialize my flight."

Corrigan served notice on girl admirers today that he is a flier, not a lover.

NEW CHARGE FOR GREGORY

Already facing legal charges that his home for metal incompetents is a public nuisance, Walter Gregory of Garden Grove faced another complaint today.

Gregory was named in a complaint signed by Deputy Dist. Atty. J. E. Walker, charging the defendant conducted an institution for the care of insane or incompetent persons without obtaining a license from the state department of institutions.

Gregory's home, subject of complaints by neighbors who say the defendant's patients have been allowed to roam the area, is located near Garden Grove. Trial of the nuisance abatement charges, filed in Anaheim justice court, has been set Aug. 3.

Traffic policemen of Blackburn, England, will be served cups of coffee every morning.

Jean Reuter Compliments Frances Was

First of what will undoubtedly be many delightful affairs given to compliment Miss Frances Was before her marriage in September to Jack Lindsey occurs was a gay party last night at which Miss Jean Reuter was hostess in the Grand avenue home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Reuter.

Guests arrived at the supper finding that the pleasant ranch home had been transposed into a Mexican cafe scene, with small tables spread with red and white checked cloths, centered by spluttering tall candles. Crimson glassware and bright-hued pottery carried out the motif, as did the little tables at each place.

After Miss Reuter, with the assistance of her mother and of Mrs. Lester Smeltzer, had served an appropriate supper menu, she brought in a big basket laden with tissue-wrapped utensils and gadgets for the red and white kitchen of the bride-elect's home. When each of these had been opened and admired, the big surprise of the evening occurred, for to Miss Was's astonishment, she was presented with a huge package that proved to be a complete electric mixer, given her by the group as a whole.

Winners of gay Mexican prizes were Miss Jo Greene and Miss Janet Diehl.

Guests of Miss Reuter were the Misses Eloise Walker, Margaret Peacock, Betty Campbell, Ione Hooven, Nancy White, Charlotte Mock, Valerie Demetriou, Mary Lou McFarland, Polly Angne, Frances Was, Helen Marshall, Jo Greene.

The Misses Elaine McReynolds, Llewellyn Allen, Jean Palmer, Marian Doty, Lois Murray, Janet Diehl, Barbara Davis, Eunice Spicer, Velma Kuechel, Gena Shepherd and Roberta Tutthill, with Mrs. Elmer Curry and Mrs. Chris Ema.

QUESTERS HAVE POTLUCK SUPPER

Since so many of the membership have just attended summer camp or are planning to do so this coming month, Questers of the First Methodist church had "Camp Spirit" for their theme when they met this week for a potluck supper at the church.

The group will meet again in two weeks with Marguerite Fox. Present this week was a special guest, Miss Frances Wells of Memphis, Tenn., as well as the members, who included the Misses Olive Schweitzer, Ruth Townsend, Vivian Vale, Mettie Mae Barnes, Dorothy Edwards, Ruth Ames, Kearney Luers, Peggy Ames, Joy Townsley, Marguerite Fox, Mary Ruth Faires, Frances Wells, Barbara Tillotson, Dorothy Sheehan and Mrs. R. I. Matthews, their advisor.

Country Club Is Setting For Lovely Luncheon

One of the loveliest luncheon tables ever arranged at the Santa Ana Country club was that at which Mrs. Jesse L. Elliott and Mrs. Delbert E. Liggett seated their guests yesterday when they entertained at luncheon and bridge in the attractive clubhouse. The two hostesses themselves were responsible for the exquisite detail of the table set in the solarium overlooking the green turf of the fairways. They had plucked the blossoms from dozens of peach-toned gladioli, and arranged them in long flat white bowls down the center of the table, connected by maidenhair fern, and terminating in crescent-shaped bowls. At each guest's place was a smart little favor of lime green that had been fashioned by Mrs. Elliott's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Birkhead.

MARY STODDARD

Wallflower Row as Described By 'Sympathetic Joe' Has Other Aspects, They Say

Wallflower Row—that long line of unattached women and girls who present an overwhelming surplus at any public dance.

A man who signed himself "Sympathetic Joe" wrote of them in this column several days ago. He sympathized with them because they are there to enjoy a dance and male companionship. He described them as sitting at the edge of the dance floor gazing hopefully that a man, any man, would invite them to dance.

It seems from many letters which are arriving by every mail from the unattached women that Joe's sympathy is wasted in many cases. Here are a few of them: "Dear 'Sympathetic Joe,' I certainly was considerate of you to give us wall flowers a bit of kind advice, but has it ever occurred to you that we poor girls might get a big laugh out of watching you men strut and stare at us? Perhaps the women you see along the sideline are looking for a real man, but you have the accent on the wrong word. Not ANY man, but any MAN, accent on the man. But real men are very scarce these days, with so many males running around with nothing to think about but how many women they can slay."

Evidently the song "Joseph Joseph," has gone to your head. Maybe the song was written for you, personally, who knows? Of course in that case we can well understand the situation.

Did you ever stop to think that in many cases, the girls who sit along the walls are there from choice, and are a little too particular to dance with men of your type?

My brothers would like to know where this place is that there are so many women to every man. They have been looking for a place like that for a long time.

Here's hoping you find your little girl who is her own "sweet self," and live happily ever after.

ELSIE JANE

Dear Mary Stoddard: If the life of the unattached and undated women (from 16 to 60) were as shadowy as the sketch in black and white done by one Sympathetic Joe, woe unto us all! Joe has only a small space in the art gallery for his exhibition. Gayety and joy are truly part of a natural heritage not to be missed. But, for a bit of pastel to hang for those who prefer reality to realism, look on another wall.

In the throng that pours daily from any building in town, there are many who are truly part of a natural heritage not to be missed. But, for a bit of pastel to hang for those who prefer reality to realism, look on another wall.

She goes home. Perhaps only the tick of an old clock greets her as she enters. She gathers a few of the supper together, and scans her evening news, to see what the Joes of the world are about. She disposes of her brief chores, and settles down with three or four books, variously tuned in readiness for whatever moods may prevail.

Through an open door she faces a huge, ancient tree, its red-brown bole rich with cracking skin peeling in scrolls from an elusive green lining. The shine of the setting sun glints on decaying leaves that rustle crisply to earth in each stray movement of breeze. New growth shines in brilliant green, its tiny leaves still, she is there—and that is important. And she outnumbers the other 10 to 1.

She drops her book, and turns to the down-going sun. A spin-dance of gnats rises from among sparkling holly leaves, and swirls in a miniature cone of life particles gayly living out their brief span. A giant walnut tree holds the sun gleams like the shine of running water. The swirls of strange leaf patterns at its branch tips create an effect of spinning as obvious as the dance of gnats.

Voices of children out in piercing screams and laughter. A fragment of bird song is more insistent than the grumble of a rebel auto engine, as a flash of bird flight on the sky is more imposing than a distant passing of an airplane. One by one a distant hill, houses take on a sunset glint in triangles of sharp light points, concentrated like candle flames. In the stillness of the passing day, life flashes in innumerable small details.

The books are taken up once more, with a touch of kinship grown between their thoughts of men and women living and dead, and the woman who reaches there shares the magic of thought and spirit with past and present, the magic of strength with mountains, of flexibility with clouds and waters and trees, down to the smallest particle of life that stirs abroad as day closes. Sherbet of Cherries Is Summer Treat

When we say red cherries are in season, one immediately thinks of a cherry pie, but did you ever try making a sherbet with some of these tart, juicy red cherries? The almond extract accentuates the cherry flavor. For an extra special dessert try serving a marshmallow sauce over the top.

CHERRY SHERBET
Ingredients required: 1 pint red sour cherries, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1/2 teaspoon almond extract, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 egg whites, 1/2 cup water.

Wash and pit cherries. Put through food grinder. Cook cherries and sugar together for about 5 minutes. Allow to cool, add water and extract. Freeze until slightly frozen. Remove from tray and fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites to which the salt has been added. Return to refrigerator and allow to finish freezing.

MARSHMALLOW SAUCE
Ingredients required: 1/4 pound marshmallows, 1/2 cup evaporated milk, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt marshmallows in milk over boiling water. Add vanilla. Cook. Serve over ice cream.

PICKLE AND CARROT SALAD
Three-fourths cup finely chopped sweet pickle, 1 cup shredded carrots, 1 cup finely-diced celery, 1 package lemon gelatin.

Dissolve gelatin. Place pickles in bottom of mold, add 1/4 of gelatin and let set. Repeat process, using celery and let set until firm. Serve with combined cooked carrots and mayonnaise dressing.

PEPPERMINT STICK ICE CREAM
(Serves 8)
One-half pound peppermint candy, 1 cup milk, 2 cups whipping cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Squash milk and dissolve candy in hot milk. Cool. Add to whipped cream and also add vanilla. Mix well. Pour in refrigerator freezer tray and freeze.

PAST GRANDS HAVE ANNUAL BEACH FROLIC
Seaside picnicking beneath the Huntington Beach pier attracted members of Sycamore Past Noble when the organization held its annual picnic luncheon affair yesterday afternoon for relatives, friends and families.

Bouquets of Mexican primroses, fragrant sweet peas, and colorful stocks decorated the long tables in use. Mrs. Ruth Zabel and Mrs. Elsie Baker were in charge of supervising picnic arrangements.

Leisure moments of the afternoon were spent in swimming, playing games in the sand, and playing cards.

Those present at the annual activities included Mr. and Mrs. R. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Schumaker, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dieplich, Mr. and Mrs. W. Will Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan, Mrs. Meta Caldwell, Mrs. Stella House, Mrs. John Crawford and granddaughter, Joan. Mrs. Kate Rinsch, Mrs. A. Baxter and little granddaughter, Mrs. Theresa Dunning.

Mrs. Inez Baker, Mrs. Fannie Rose, Mrs. Beth McDonald, Mrs. Elizabeth Jernigan, Mrs. Bonnie Taylor, Mrs. Ann Sayers, Mrs. E. L. House, Jr., and son, Grady, Mrs. Flossie Baker, Mrs. Helena Bunker, Mrs. Alfreda Olsen and daughter, LaVerne, Mrs. Rhoda Ransome, Mr. W. Myrick, Miss Jean and Miss Justine Zabel, and Miss Verna and Miss Barbara Wolfe from Porterville.

FAMILIES ENJOY CLASS PICNIC
When Mary Martha class of the Calvary church met for a picnic supper at Anaheim park last night, with husbands and children as guests, there were approximately 100 in attendance.

Games and sports followed the picnic supper, which was arranged by a committee composed of Mrs. George Meinhardt, Mrs. George B. Boyer and Harold Bracewell.

Fried mush is often served with fried chicken. To prepare the mush mold it in a loaf pan. Chill it until it is firm. Then cut it into fourth-inch slices and sprinkle with flour. Brown in chicken drippings and serve around the platter of chicken.

MISS DUNLAP SURPRISED ON ANNIVERSARY
Miss Ruth Dunlap's twenty-first birthday anniversary yesterday was occasion for a surprise party given by a number of her close friends since schooldays, in conjunction with plans made by her mother, Mrs. W. C. Dunlap, and Miss Mary Schrock.

The group arrived at her home shortly after dinner, after Miss Eleanor Jordan had prepared the way by arriving in time to allay the honor guest's suspicions and join with her in admiring the lovely cedar chest that was her parents' gift.

An informal evening of games and conversation was spent by the guests, who included Mrs. William Knight, Mrs. Fred Schrock, Jr., Mrs. Merle Kent, Miss Mary Schrock, Miss Eleanor Jordan, Miss Cecilia Plantamura, Miss Bernadine Helberg, Miss Marjorie Button and Miss Mary Zaiser.

A final touch to the enjoyable affair came with the serving of two lovely birthday cakes, one baked by Mrs. Dunlap, and the other, Mrs. Emma Swanner's annual gift to Miss Dunlap.

MARY HAMPTON

Will Help You With Your Clothes Problem. Write Her!

In her little Palo Alto apartment Valerie Nancy Gregory, or the daughter of the Rajah of Sarawak, is finding lov. with a wrestler, infinitely more fun than life with a rajah, even if he is her father. And they say she is the best dressed bit of modernity!

Living in a compact little apartment—and with the fights to go to afterward the little blonde from Borneo usually wears "going out" clothes for dinner. That night she wore an ensemble. The frock part was printed sheer—navy with a small white design and, as relayed to me, "the trickiest doodab of white pique at her neck—a high neck close to the throat." Then there were navy sandals, with toes out and jaunty high heels, and, when going out time came, a fitted navy wool coat to top the frock—full length. The hat's crown was open—the narrow poke bonnet brim lined in white and the half-crown a twisted affair of fabric. And there were white lace summer gloves. While all this certainly sounds good, the effect must have been even better—for as Olive concluded, "She looked smart!"—with emphasis.

Dear Lorraine—A knock-out of a swim suit is first requirement for a gay vacation week at Catalina this summer—maybe satin latex or tricky new matelée! Or it can be a cotton swim suit—but colorful and becoming and unmistakably this-summerish. For the train trip down you cannot do better than a small-patterned print—sheer or crepe—with jacket or bolero—or even a loose long coat to match. This frock will work for dinner, too, on week nights. Besides these things, then have a well-cut pair of slacks or shorts with shirt top—beach shoes, of course—at least summer sport frocks of tailored type and maybe one dressier affair for Casino dancing in the afternoon, and casual dinners also. One long dress will be plenty—something breath-takingly summery in cotton with full skirt. (A top coat always!)

Mary Hampton.

MISS DUNLAP SURPRISED ON ANNIVERSARY
Miss Ruth Dunlap's twenty-first birthday anniversary yesterday was occasion for a surprise party given by a number of her close friends since schooldays, in conjunction with plans made by her mother, Mrs. W. C. Dunlap, and Miss Mary Schrock.

The group arrived at her home shortly after dinner, after Miss Eleanor Jordan had prepared the way by arriving in time to allay the honor guest's suspicions and join with her in admiring the lovely cedar chest that was her parents' gift.

An informal evening of games and conversation was spent by the guests, who included Mrs. William Knight, Mrs. Fred Schrock, Jr., Mrs. Merle Kent, Miss Mary Schrock, Miss Eleanor Jordan, Miss Cecilia Plantamura, Miss Bernadine Helberg, Miss Marjorie Button and Miss Mary Zaiser.

Make Use Of Short Season Of Fruits

Fruits and berries come and go so quickly that unless we are alert to seasons we may not have our fill of them when they are in season. Serve fruit just plain, attractively piled in a large bowl, or mix several fruits together. Watermelon and cantaloupe make a lovely first course when scooped into little balls. Just before serving, try pouring a little gingerale over them.

PEACH & RASPBERRY BOWL

(Serves 4 to 6)
One pint perfect raspberries, 6 peaches, 1/4 cup granulated sugar, 4 tablespoons of maraschino juice. Carefully pick over the raspberries and wash gently. Chill. Plunge the peaches into boiling water, remove instantly and then peel. Cut into thin slices. Cover with sugar. Chill quickly in freezing tray.

EGG AND CUCUMBER ASPIC

(Serves 4 to 6)
One package lemon gelatin, 2 cups boiling beef stock or 2 bouillon cubes dissolved in 2 cups boiling water, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, dash cayenne, 4 eggs hard-cooked, 1 small cucumber.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling bouillon. Add vinegar and seasonings. Allow to chill until it begins to set. Arrange halves of egg and lengthwise strips of cucumber in mold. Fill with aspic and chill 2 to 3 hours in refrigerator. Turn out on garnished plate and serve with cold meats or as a luncheon salad.

COTTAGE CHEESE RING

(Serves 4 to 6)
One tablespoon plain gelatin, 1/4 cup cold water, 2 cups cottage cheese, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, dash cayenne, 1/2 cup sour cream.

Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Mash cheese fine. Add seasonings, cream and gelatin. Turn into 1 large or individual ring molds. Allow to set several hours. Unmold on bed of lettuce and fill center with fresh fruit and French dressing.

LAMB'S TONGUE IN ASPIC

One jar pickled lamb's tongues, 1 can beef bouillon, 1/2 cup liquor from tongue, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1/4 cup water, 1 tablespoon plain gelatin. Remove lamb's tongues from jar and arrange in mold. Heat bouillon, tongue liquor and vinegar to boiling. Soak gelatin in 1/4 cup cold water. Add hot stock to gelatin. Pour over lamb's tongues while still hot. Chill in refrigerator 3 hours before slicing.

MRS. BRIGGS IS HOSTESS TO EIGHTSOME

Entertaining at a delightful little summer party which is prelude to a series she will give later in the fall, Mrs. George S. Briggs extended her famous hospitality yesterday. Eight guests were seated for luncheon at a table beautifully centered with a Japanese bowl of waterlilies. At contract later pretty prizes were presented Mrs. Ray Chandler and Mrs. William Taylor Stearns for their high scores.

More Contracts for American Canal

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Secretary Ickes awarded a $269,892 contract today for construction of the Alamo river crossing and two other structures on the all-American canal in Southern California. The work will be done by the Atlas Construction company, Pasadena, Cal. The Alamo river crossing is the last of the major structures to be undertaken along the line of the 80-mile canal. Besides the crossing, the contract also covers construction of the central main canal check and the new Brian canal crossing and turnout near Calexico.

INSULL BODY TO LONDON PARIS. (AP)—The body of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities operator who died Saturday, was sent to London today for burial in the Insull family plot at Putney Vale.

THE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Here and There With Southern California Artists

By DONALD BUTTON

CIVIC CENTER

Santa Ana Realty Board has begun a survey of existing court-house facilities, looking toward that time when (and soon) new physical facilities are needed for the carrying on of county government.

That Board, as should we all, ought to give some consideration to the potentialities of combining that building with Santa Ana's much needed civic auditorium and public library building into a present-day civic center.

Federal monies are presumably available. To those who decry Federal spending it should also be pointed out that they will share the burden of repayment whether or not they choose to participate in that spending.

It is regrettable, naturally, that we were not civically foresighted enough to plan for city hall, court-house, auditorium and public library when one organic and unified plan, for we have adequately housed city government.

I have gone deep within the problem of the Library. Business benefits to be derived from an auditorium (conventions and meetings) need not be detailed here.

The development of music and drama here are hampered by existing inadequate auditorium facilities.

It is time, now, for us to think of a civic center!

MEXICO

In a study of civic planning (we need lots of it just now) Esther and Earnest Born's "The New Architecture in Mexico," especially as it applies to the city of Mexico is helpful.

There the leading architects are working toward an harmonious development that is not too opposed to the traditional styles.

They have considered their background, they have tabulated necessities, and they are giving their clients a functional, yet liveable, architecture.

The book will, I believe, give you a startling, and yet stimulating, view of the contemporary Mexican architecture.

You should put it on your summer reading lists.

"FRENCH MODERN"

A copy of the catalogue for the City of Paris, San Francisco, recent showing of French modern paintings has just reached this desk.

Leger, Chirico, Picasso, Miro, Marie Laurencin, Renoir, Maillol are among those represented.

The catalogue (and I like this) in introduction states "to appreciate genius already established is a work of the heart; to recognize genius in living form is the work of the intellect."

There is a neat summation for an esthetic philosophy!

"FINE ARTS"

Fin Art Gallery, San Diego, has this summer entered upon an intensive schedule not generally characteristic (in summer) of such institutions.

The 10th annual Southern California show continues, and with it this month one may see the San Francisco Art association's "Water Color Annual."

The gallery is open prior to the San Diego Symphony concerts in Balboa park during the current season.

Yesterday (Thursday) marked the first of a series of three radio talks over station KGB (San Diego) in which director Poland, David Young of KGB and an authority on the era (contemporary) discussed southern California art. Succeeding talks are to be devoted to the modern French (Thursday, July 28th, 8:30 p. m.) and the Old Masters (August 4th) in the Fine Arts society collection.

COLLECTOR

Architect Julius H. Buckman, of Houston, is spending the summer at Laguna and taking advantage of his visit on this coast to "collect" contemporary painting.

He has bought a number of Seymour Paul's (who left Wednesday on his golden trip to Hawaii)

ONE HUNDRED ATTEND DEMOLAY PICNIC

Given as the first informal party to complement the advisory board, DeMolay Mothers' circle held a successful covered dish supper last night at Santiago park for 100 guests, families, and members. Special guests at the affair were members of the Long Beach baseball team. Those present were invited to see moving pictures taken by the four delegates who attended the recent Kansas City convention, Ralph Pagenkopp, master counselor; Dick Horton, senior counselor; Gregg Watson, advisor, and Courtney Chandler, advisor.

Santa Ana's DeMolay ball team won 10-2 in the after dinner game with Long Beach. The recreational hall was also the scene of the advisory council meeting in the evening.

Assisting in serving under the direction of Mrs. W. G. Pagenkopp were Dr. Roy S. Horton, Mrs. Sky Weahunt, Mrs. Clyde Files, and Mrs. Georgia Farren. Ralph Pagenkopp, with a group of DeMolays, poured coffee.

Members of the advisory board present were Dr. and Mrs. Roy Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Plummer Bruns, Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Chandler and children, Mr. Abe Bergsetter, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Farmer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sink and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Hunter, Darrel Gaeb, Shelley Horton, Ray Johnson, Warren Mann, Harold Rasmussen, Mr. and Mrs. Kokler Rathbone and family, Gregg Watson, Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wyckoff.

HELD ON U. S. CHARGE

Delfino Barrera, 30, and Gabriel Hernandez, 22, were booked in the county jail yesterday afternoon by federal officers on charges of violating immigration laws.

GAMES RAIDED ALONG COAST

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Five raids by district attorney's investigators in Redondo Beach and Ocean Park sent 38 men to jail last night on suspicion of violating state gambling laws.

The raiders seized $1050 in cash and quantities of merchandise offered as prizes. Captain John Klein said a game called racehorse—"a polite form of roulette"—was being played at the resorts.

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—One hundred women patrons of a tango game went free today, while police held four men on misdemeanor or lottery charges. The raid was staged at a Wilshire boulevard restaurant.

Chainman Dies

CINCINNATI. (AP)—Bernard Henry Kroger, 78, founder of one of the country's largest chain grocery store systems, died last night of a heart attack in his Cape Cod summer home.

AAA Attacked at Corn Belt Meet of Liberty Leaguers

INDIANAPOLIS. (AP)—The agricultural adjustment act was used in California to force a sugar beet grower to pay his field workers 52 1/2 cents an hour in place of the established 35 cents. Walter E. Garrison of Lodi, Cal., told the Corn Belt Liberty league yesterday.

The Corn Belt league is opposed to the AAA. Garrison, president of the Associated Farmers of the Pacific coast, charged labor struggles in California were "95 per cent fomented by known Communist and labor racketeers."

ANAHEIM MAN SUED FOR $373

Suit for $373.50 assertedly due T. R. Gillinwaters, former Oregon district attorney and former distributor here for a mineral water concern, was on file today in Santa Ana justice court against Frank C. Snyder of Anaheim, water dealer.

Gillinwaters was the central figure two years ago in a series of lawsuits against the La Vida Mineral Springs Co., which countered with a criminal complaint charging Gillinwaters with issuing a bad check. The whole matter finally was settled with dismissal of conspiracy charges and entering of a compromise judgment in the civil suit.

Today's justice court action was brought by I. Henry Maris, jr., Los Angeles attorney, who represented Gillinwaters here and who now is holder of Gillinwaters' claim against Snyder.

CALHOUN HELD FOR TRIAL AS SLAYER OF CLYDE DILLINGER

RELUCTANCE
IS EXPRESSED
BY JUSTICE

Lanky, tearful Charles Calhoun, 28-year-old ex-convict, will face superior court a week from today for arraignment on murder charges growing out of the fatal shooting of Calhoun's stepfather, Clyde Dillinger, 30.

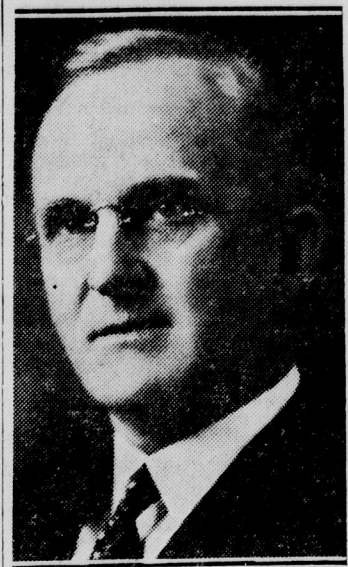

Justice Chris Pann, saying he was "reluctant to do so," nevertheless ordered Calhoun held to answer to the higher court yesterday afternoon after a four-hour preliminary hearing into the murder case.

Calhoun had admitted the shooting, claiming he did it because of injustices he and his woman relatives had suffered at Dillinger's hands. Dillinger, who died July 12 after the shooting June 26 in Midway City, was a cousin of the late gangster, John Dillinger, slain by federal agents in Chicago.

The youthful defendant, who has wept almost constantly since he surrendered to officers after telephoning police "I've just shot a man," was held under $10,000 bail pending arraignment before the higher court.

At the hearing the prisoner's mother, Mrs. Cora Dillinger, was called by Asst. Dist. Atty. Preston Turner as a witness against her son for the killing of her husband. She said she knew Dillinger had been unfaithful to her and had been intimate with Mrs. Calhoun—her daughter-in-law.

Calhoun confessed shooting Dillinger as the latter stood in the back yard of a Midway City home playing with a small dog. A bullet from the 30-30 caliber rifle

Santa Ana Pastor Elected
Moderator of Presbyterian
Synod of California

REV. O. SCOTT MCFARLAND

The Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Santa Ana, today was elected moderator of the Presbyterian synod of California at the opening session of the synod in Santa Barbara.

The synod program will be completed next Wednesday. As moderator of the synod, which includes California and Nevada Presbyterian groups, Rev. McFarland will preside over synod meetings and activities for the coming year. He has been pastor of the First Presbyterian church here for 11 years.

Dr. Edward Arthur Wicher, retiring moderator, said in an address at Santa Barbara last night that "important new lines of work" for the ministry were "in behalf of the Filipinos resident in our state, and the new influx of migratory workers from the Dust Bowl of the Midwest."

Rev. McFarland has served as chairman of the board of united promotion for the synod since it was organized two years ago. The board, set up to correlate the synod's entire program, is the most important in the organization. The Santa Ana pastor's work as chairman has been responsible for his election to the higher post.

As moderator of the California synod, which includes more than 100,000 Presbyterians, Rev. McFarland will conduct all business, meetings and oversee synod work during the coming year. Much of his time will be spent in visits to the various churches throughout California and Nevada.

Rev. McFarland recently celebrated the 25th anniversary of his ordination as a pastor. He served in several churches in Ohio and Pennsylvania before coming to Santa Ana 11 years ago.

A six-month-old baby, and Mabel Nomann also were injured, although not seriously, according to first reports.

Loyce O. Gildewell, 27, driver of one of the two vehicles involved in the crash, was charged by a highway patrol officer with failing to make a boulevard stop. His machine collided with one driven by Emil Nomann. The Nomann car was turned over by the impact.

Reported to the highway patrol for the first time today was an accident involving a motorcycle and an automobile last Sunday. Joseph W. Young, 21, Pomona, and Evelyn Lindgren, 17, San Dimas, riding the cycle crashed into the rear of a machine operated by Nora D. Margwarth, 34, 2708 Harbor boulevard, Costa Mesa. The two cyclists suffered scratches and bruises.

Japanese Tankers
Sent to Tampico

SAN PEDRO. (AP)—Diversions of Japanese oil tankers to Tampico prompted speculation here today on whether the Nipponese government has contracted to buy oil from the American, British and Dutch properties recently expropriated by the Mexican government.

Two large Japanese tankers, the Itukusima Maru and Tatakawa Maru, are due here Sunday but have been instructed to take on a fuel supply only and await further orders, their agents disclosed.

Delhi Petitions
For Street Work

"Councilman Ernest Layton has made promises that he'll fix the streets in Delhi, but promises don't do us any good," Matt Lujan, "mayor of Delhi," said today in announcing that a petition is being circulated in his community urging the city of Santa Ana to improve the streets there.

Lujan explained that during the winter months the streets of Delhi are constantly muddy, making for hazardous driving conditions and greatly inconveniencing the residents there. In the summer, Lujan stated further, the roads are a "veritable dust bowl."

Layton is the street commissioner.

DEPUTY BADGE TAKEN FROM ALTADENA MAN

W. M. Bond, Altadena ambulance service proprietor, who caused a flurry of excitement in President Roosevelt's official party at San Clemente last Saturday, today no longer has the right to carry a pistol.

Sheriff Logan Jackson said he had received a letter from Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz of Los Angeles county, thanking Jackson for his cooperation in Bond's detention and assuring him the deputy sheriff's badge which Bond carried was now revoked and would never be reissued.

Bond was discovered in San Clemente state park Saturday afternoon near the arbor where the chief executive was eating lunch. A search disclosed that he was carrying a loaded revolver; and Jackson and secret service men hustled him to Santa Ana for several hours' questioning, after which he was released.

Bond's deputy sheriff's commission from Los Angeles then was still in effect, giving him the right to carry a concealed weapon. Jackson confiscated the badge and gun, however, and reported the matter to the sheriff's office in Los Angeles.

"The whole occurrence was very unfortunate," wrote Serg. Robert M. Palmer, Biscailuz's investigator. "I am grateful to you for the manner in which you handled the situation. It is true that on Jan. 29, 1934, W. M. Bond was sworn in under the present administration and his commission was in effect until the time we received his badge from you, at which time his commission was revoked, and I can assure you that the badge never will be returned to him."

NRLB Steps Aside To Aid Settlement Of Maytag Strike

NEWTON, Iowa. (AP)—A national labor relations board hearing in the 11-week-old Maytag strike controversy remained adjourned today, while the question of whether possible steps toward settlement of the dispute were under way remained unanswered.

Company and CIO union officials declared no negotiations toward settlement had been made, but Madison Bill, NRLB trial examiner who adjourned the hearing suddenly yesterday, stated his board did not wish to "stand in the way of the possible opportunity of both parties to get this matter ironed out."

Preston Brown, 32, Colfax, Ia., WPA worker, remained under military detention without charge. His arrest last night was the first under martial law following the street fight near the Maytag plant Wednesday.

TOWNSEND NEWS, VIEWS

By WALTER R. ROBB

(This column deals with Townsend news and views. Any opinions which are expressed herein are not necessarily those of The Journal.)

The play, "A Wireless Telephone Station" is being put on in Orange city Townsend hall at 131 South Glassell street at 7:30 p. m. tonight. Orange club No. 2, according to Mrs. Carrie E. Stevens, secretary, is sponsoring the appearance of a cast of persons from the Anaheim club who are putting on the comedy. Mrs. Effie Whitney, chairman of the Orange club's entertainment committee will introduce the members of the cast to the audience. Programs have been printed and there will be a small admission charge made at the door. This comedy by the same cast of players has already been put on before and the reports are all very complimentary. If you haven't seen this production you should by all means see it if possible.

Riverside Townsends are up and coming these days. They have secured a lease on a building for a Townsend hall, located at 3469 North Main street. The building is much larger than the one recently vacated on Eighth street and should prove of great advantage to the Townsends of that county as a place in which to hold mass meetings. It has a floor space which is 42 feet in width by 120 feet long and has been leased at a monthly rental cost of $50. The building was in need of thorough renovation when taken over and of some modernization. Already $150 has been expended in this connection. The kitchen has been well fitted up with stoves, steam table, dishwashing sinks and other equipment essential to serving Townsend dinners. The chairs from the old hall are being used and it is contemplated that later they will be added to by other purchases. R. L. Porter, wide-awake elderly Townsendite has been made the custodian and he is brimming over with enthusiasm because of the hall and the advantages it offers for promoting the interests of the Townsend cause in Riverside city. Last night at 7:30 o'clock Buddy Darreze, the 13-year-old Santa Monica youth who so astounded the 35,000 or more Townsendites gathered in Long Beach on June 23 with his remarkable speech, made his first appearance before a Riverside audience in the hall. Tonight Riverside club No. 10 is sponsoring a dance which will be largely attended by the young people and also the older Townsend club members. To make the week end up right, a big Riverside county Townsend mass meeting will be held in the hall tomorrow evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock. At this meeting the Republican and Townsend-endorsed candidate for congress, Mayor C. T. Johnson of San Bernardino, will be the featured speaker. In addition, George Vese, Townsend national representative and Dr. Joseph Warneck, Townsend lecturer from Kalamazoo, Mich., are to make addresses. The Orange county Townsends will be glad to hear of this forward step by their brethren in Riverside and will join with this column in extending congratulations.

The Tustin club No. 1 is to be congratulated in having been successful in obtaining the services of Mrs. A. F. Hibbet to again become the club's correspondent with this column. Mrs. Hibbet is well adapted to the task and starts off with the following interesting write-up of the club's last Monday night meeting, when the members of the El Toro Townsend club were guests of the Tustin club. Mrs. Hibbet says: "Visitors from Orange, Costa Mesa, Laguna Beach and Santa Ana were present at Tustin Townsend club on Monday night to honor El Toro Townsend friends. Short talks were given by visiting guests, and subjects of importance in regard to the coming political campaign were discussed.

"Musical entertainment was the feature of the evening; Bruce Mayhew gave two artistic trumpet solos, Donald Hawk's charming his audience with two accordion numbers, and Shirley Casperson at the piano proved her artistry. Mrs. Roy Wilson led the community singing, and a special feature was the singing of the campaign song written by Mrs. R. E. Thomas of El Toro.

"Ice cream, cake and coffee were served to about 75 present and 10 new names were added to the membership."

Mrs. K. C. Burdick, president of Costa Mesa club No. 3, was a caller at the Robb home in Santa Ana last Wednesday morning and left a write-up concerning a Townsend mass meeting her club is sponsoring in the Woman's club building which will be held next Thursday night. The honored guest of the evening will be Mayor C. T. Johnson of San Bernardino, who will also be the main speaker. Full particulars concerning this meeting will appear in this column early next week.

This column apologizes to Santa Ana club No. 9 and to its president, C. A. Hallows, for having failed to publicize the meetings of the club which was held last night in the Mr. and Mrs. Ward home at 2005 Orange avenue. In some way or other the notice of the meeting, which had been given to the writer verbally, slipped his memory until after last night's column was already in print. He is very sorry the omission occurred and will endeavor to not repeat his error.

$1000 FOR OLD TIMER

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—A $1000 prize is being offered to the man adjudged the "oldest old-time printer" in the United States.

The winner will be selected by the Sacramento-Golden Empire Centennial committee on the basis of age plus speed and accuracy in setting one "stick" of type.

His job will be to supervise production of the "Daily Transcript," pioneer newspaper which the committee plans to publish during the celebration of the city's 100th anniversary next year.

The "Daily Transcript" will be printed on an old hand press used at the time of the gold rush at Sutter's fort. Five contests will be held throughout the nation, with the five regional champions competing here for first prize.

Railroads Take No Chances When President Rides; Here's Account of S. P. Precautions

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—The story behind President Roosevelt's ride into California—the extraordinary precautions taken to make it as safe as humanly possible—is now being told by Southern Pacific officials.

The presidential special was preceded by 10 minutes by a pilot train whose purpose was to see if there were any broken rails or obstructions on the track.

Eastbound freight trains, it is disclosed, were under orders to take sidings a half hour ahead of the scheduled arrival of the two official trains.

Engineers had orders that wherever possible, freight cars should be placed two tracks away from the main line, in spite of the existence of a double-track line between Sacramento and Reno.

Officials say the reason for this was to remove the possibility of a piece of lumber or any other protruding piece of freight striking the President's car.

Eastbound passenger trains were instructed to slow down to 15 miles an hour as soon as the pilot train came into view. All crews were told to watch carefully for the special passed and stop it immediately if anything appeared amiss.

Section crews watched at every bridge, tunnel, trestle and deep cut in the mountains until the two trains passed. And, officials reveal, every mile of track was inspected by track walkers a short while before.

At Roseville, Calif., and Sparks, Nev., and other railroad yard centers, wrecking crews were on duty with equipment ready to go in response to a possible emergency call.

Every switch on tracks running into the main line, in addition to being padlocked, was spiked into place. Trains running in the same direction as that of the presidential car were cleared eight hours ahead of it.

But, despite all these elaborate safety measures, officials say, something almost did happen—not dangerous but it would have proved embarrassing to the company.

A newly repaired engine, freshly painted and repaired, was set aside to pull the special from

LIFE ESTATE FOR HUSBAND

Mrs. Oriana K. Bulkeley of Anaheim, who died July 13, left a life estate in her $10,000 property to her husband, according to terms of a will on file today for probate in superior court.

At the death of her husband, S. H. Bulkeley, real estate owned by the deceased is to go to the First Methodist Episcopal church of Los Angeles. Personal property goes to his heirs.

The estate, the widower said in filing his petition, consists of a four-family court at 111 Mills drive, Anaheim, and personal property, worth not in excess of $10,000.

LIQUOR PERMIT DENIED

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—Application of L. J. Detrixhe for a permit to sell liquor at an establishment in Santa Monica, was denied by the state board of equalization yesterday.

Sparks to Sacramento. It completed the run without mishap. Several hours later, however, the same locomotive on the return trip developed engine trouble a few miles north of Auburn, and had to be taken out of service.

SUBDIVISION PROJECTED

Plans for a new Santa Ana subdivision were being carried forward today as they were laid before City Engineer J. L. McBride. Included in plans for the development, north of one opened less than two years ago, are improvements of Freeman, Lowell and Olive streets northward, and possibly others. This development will provide homesites in what is now a walnut grove.

McBride's office must approve plans for the street paving work, for installation of sewer lines and for other improvements in preparation for the sale of the land.

LEGION CHIEF TURNS HISSES INTO APPLAUSE

NEW YORK. (AP)—Daniel L. Doherty, national commander of the American Legion, turned hisses into applause last night when he paraded audience resentment at a remark about "red professors" with the statement that the "freedom and democracy" of America made both the remark and the hisses possible.

Doherty spoke before the Teachers' college of Columbia university which recently published a thesis criticizing Legion leaders as "reactionary." The thesis, written by Prof. William Gellerman of Northwestern university, accused the veterans' leaders of a policy that throttled rank-and-file sentiment. Doherty did not refer to Gellerman in his address, but he appealed to Columbia to rid itself of "baleful influences."

"The time has come to draw a line between educators and propagandists," he said. "Freedom of speech is not involved in this question. True education is."

"If it were not for public apathy and listlessness toward the responsibilities of citizenship," he said, "we would not have these red professors."

Hisses interrupted him, but he waited until the noise subsided and then went on:

"The only right you have to hiss me is because this is a free and untrammelled democracy. If it were not for the freedom and democracy in this country, I would not have the freedom to say these things, and you would not have the right to hiss."

Applause greeted the retort.

Dean William F. Russell of the Teachers' college, in introducing the Legion commander, said the Gellerman thesis was published by Columbia because "in a free university, in a free country, students and faculty alike must be free to study and free to speak and publish, even when their ideas differ from our own."

Doherty's speech mainly was a defense of the Legion as "a bulwark against the encroachment of forces that would destroy Americanism." Most attacks upon it he attributed to private motives.

WHAT'S WHAT 'BOUT TRAFFIC

By CHIEF E. RAYMOND CATO
California Highway Patrol

Q.—An officer arrested me for driving with a defective windshield and stated I had to have it replaced. How long do I have to do that?

A.—You are required to have it replaced within 48 hours, and to produce evidence in court, on your appearance date, that the windshield does conform to the requirements of the Vehicle Code.

Q.—Have local authorities the right to increase weight limits on vehicles within their city or county boundaries? This question is very puzzling as I have never seen so many conflicting opinions.—H. L. A.

A.—Section 712 of the Vehicle Code is plain on this subject. It provides "The legislative body of any county, city and county or city shall have power by ordinance to permit the operation and moving of vehicles and loads upon highways under their respective jurisdiction of a maximum gross weight in excess of the maximum gross weight of vehicles and loads specified in this (Vehicle) Code." "B.—This section shall have no application to highways in the state highway system."

Q.—Is there any penalty for persons who, when making a turn at an intersection, when driving an automobile, fail to give an arm signal?—W. J. K.

A.—Yes, it is a misdemeanor.

Q.—For what distance should such signals be given?—D. C. L.

A.—During the last 50 feet of travel.

Q.—Suppose a car is approaching and none is following—must a signal be given when it is intended to make a turn?—S. A.

A.—The law requires that signals be given at all times when any other vehicle may be affected.

Q.—As an employee I signed an application for a minor to secure a chauffeur's license. He is now employed by another person and he is a careless driver. What can I do to avoid a lawsuit should he become involved in an accident.—J. O. W.

A.—Make application to the division issuing licenses requesting that you be relieved of responsibility as signer of his application.

Barkley on O. K. List of Rivals in Organized Labor

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., which disagree on many political as well as labor issues, have added Sen. Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) to the short list of congressional candidates endorsed by both factions.

William Green, A. F. of L. president, announced he had written the Kentucky Federation of Labor:

"Barkley's service for labor and the fine record he made in support of labor legislation merits the support of the officers and members of the American Federation of labor and all their friends."

John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, earlier had urged organized labor in Kentucky to back Barkley, administration floor leader, who is opposed for renomination by Gov. A. B. Chandler.

Millionaire, 79, Sued by Wife as Playful Romeo

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—A millionaire retired dentist was described in court today as a 79-year-old Romeo who considered his wife, 33 years his junior, too old-fashioned.

Suing spry white-haired Dr. Adolph F. Schiffman for $700 a month separate maintenance, Mrs. Gloria Schiffman testified she saw him at night clubs with other women.

One morning a year ago, she said, she scaled an eight-foot barbed wire fence to find him entertaining two strange feminine visitors in silk pajamas and negligees on his North Hollywood ranch.

"They said, 'The doctor can't be left alone.' I told them the doctor did not need to be alone when his wife was in the city."

Double Play Sends Golf Ball Total Of 310 Yards

SHAWANO, Wis. (AP)—Using what might be called the double play system, Mrs. Merle K. Bennett of Wichita, Kan., and Louis Kroll of Cecil, drove a golf ball 310 yards while practicing yesterday. Here's how:

Mrs. Bennett drove her ball about 150 yards to a spot where Kroll, his back to Mrs. Bennett, was taking swings at dandelions. The ball rolled into the path of Kroll's swing and he unintentionally sent it another 160 yards.

MARKET COMMENT

Introducing Mr. Art Weiler

Arthur Weiler, the major domo of Arthur's Do-Nut Shop was born on the same day William Howard Taft was inaugurated, March 4th, 1908... and Art wasn't plastered with any of those freak names that usually haunt an unlucky person born on one of those big days...

But it wasn't all luck that has steered the course of the Weilers' lives... Art has put in plenty of hard labor especially since he was fortunate enough to come to Santa Ana and start in business in the Grand Central Market... where he has made a howling success in the wholesale and retail doughnut business.

The stork dropped Art in St. Louis, Mo., where he received his education, coming to the coast in 1929, landing in Pasadena.

The Weilers came to Santa Ana, and the Grand Central Market, on March 1st, 1936 and in the short space of two years have built a business they can well be proud of.

Didja ever notice the crowds around either of the Smoke Shop counters these hot days? The answer is Ice Cold Drinks... and take it from your Uncle Dudley the boys do keep those drinks ice cold... elbow your way through and take a flyer at one yourself someday.

And while we're on the subject of drinks, etc., don't overlook a good bet at Charley's Cafe, the chef and director D'Affairs in the Grand Central's eating emporium. Charley Miller has really thrown together some choice hot weather menus.

An old familiar face has disappeared from behind the counters of one of the original stands in the Market... Mr. Urbine has "flew the coop," selling his entire interests in the Urbine Meat Market to Ben Baker.

Baker returns to a spot where he at one time worked as an employee under Urbine, when the Grand Central Market was first opened. For the past few years Baker has owned and operated his own market on North Main street.

Much as we hate to lose "Urbine," we welcome Ben Baker as an old friend and a worthy addition to the best group of "going to town" business men in the county.

Associated with Baker will be the two old stand-bys that have been with the Urbine Market for years, Ray Whitten and Martin Shields.

And speaking of old familiar faces in the Grand Central Market... have you noticed that you hardly ever see a change in the personnel of the shops in the G. C.?... Think we, it's a pretty good recommendation, and almost a guarantee that they're all quite of a "right bunch."

Looks like the Goodrich Tire Store, next to the Grand Central has had its face lifted, or sumpin'... new gas pumps and whatnot... drive around and take a look... and incidentally they'll sell you all of the gasoline your tank will hold... and no arguments.

Latest reports from Schmidt's Meat Market say that Henry Schmidt is coming along fine and will soon be back on the job... we're glad to hear it... but take a tip Henry... don't try to rush Mother Nature. She'll treat ya better if ya let her take her time... you know that old gag about a stitch in time... let'er stitch.

Women Have Day Of Their Own at Next State Fair

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—The women, at long last, are going to have a "day" all to themselves at the California state fair this year. Various organizations and groups have had days set aside for them, but never in the 8 years of the exposition has that honor gone exclusively to the women.

Elated, the Sacramento Women's council plans a program on the "day," tentatively Sept. 7, which it expects will surpass all others.

The main spectacle will be a "Dance of the Nations," one and a half hours of folk songs and dances of countries all over the world.

Arrangements are being made for 1000 guests at the women's day luncheon in the new assembly hall, highlighted by a fashion show of clothes made by the models.

3 MORE SONS OF PENSIONERS TOLD TO PAY

Three more sons of old-age pensioners were ordered to reimburse the county yesterday afternoon in a decision by Superior Judge H. G. Ames, awarding the county $350 and providing payment over a five-month period.

Jack Callahan, Pasadena floor-finisher, must pay $40 a month for five months to repay the county for pension given his parents; Dewey Callahan, Tustin floorer, must pay $25 a month; and their brother, Perry, Huntington Beach oil worker, must pay $5 a month for five months.

Judgment was rendered at the close of an all-day trial with Harry Westover of Santa Ana representing the defendants and Deputy Dist. Atty. J. E. Walker urging the county's case. Funds to be recovered from the sons were paid to Charlie L. and Katie A. Callahan of Santa Ana, the pensioners.

Walker has filed more than a score of suits for reimbursement against sons and daughters who have refused to support their aged parents who are receiving county funds.

During trial of the case, Judge Ames ruled that jurisdiction in such suits, although they are for small amounts, lies in superior court. The question recently was ruled on by Superior Judge G. K. Seovel, who held similarly. His ruling has been followed by Superior Judge Raymond McIntosh of Sierra county and Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison. Superior Judge James L. Allen holds that jurisdiction belongs in justice courts.

In 1937 New Mexico had the highest birth-rate in the country, New Jersey the lowest.

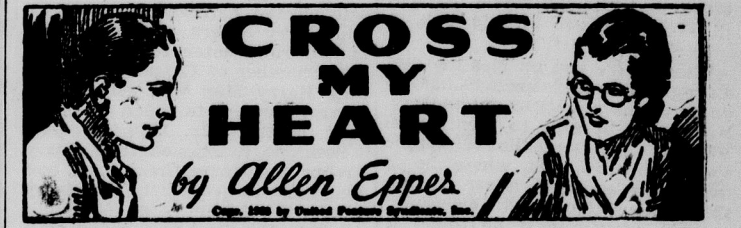

What Do Convicts Do With Golf Balls—That's the Puzzle

FOLSOM PRISON. (AP)—What do convicts want with golf balls, Warden Clyde I. Plummer, an ardent golfer, would like to know. He's out a few, and it has him puzzled.

The warden likes to drive the balls within the walls for exercise when he can't run down to a Sacramento course. It happens that some stray into the flower garden, and are seen no more.

The prison newspaper, which seemed to enjoy the story immensely, says the warden determined authoritatively that prisoners have no use for golf balls. The report was:

"Too hard for handball and no yarn in them for making rugs."

CROSS MY HEART

by Allen Eppes

Cynthia Glenn is unpredictable. Hence, Peter Moore, in love with her, is not surprised by her latest "crazy scheme." In her absence, he has rented her ancestral Southern home to the newly-rich Mrs. Potter-Payne, who is trying to create a "back-ground" for herself with the hope of marrying her daughter and son, Irene and Tommy, to an Englishman and his sister, Bruce and Beatrice Kerr, her house guests. Cynthia suddenly decides to turn author and put the Potter-Paynes in a book. Disguising herself with tortoiseshell glasses, and calling herself "Jennie Smith," a friend of Cynthia Glenn's, she persuades Mrs. Potter-Payne to hire her as secretary. But she doesn't like it when Peter becomes interested in Irene. One day, Tommy calls on her aunt, Miss Kate Glenn, and asks to see a picture of Cynthia Glenn. Miss Kate shows him an old snapshot of Cynthia with a bespectacled friend, and tells him the friend is "Jennie Smith." Cynthia, fearing Tommy may not have been taken in, later questions him.

"I'm sorry. But I thought that, since it was such a good picture of you, it must be a good one of her, too."

Again, Cynthia looked at him sharply. Again, she had the feeling that he was kidding her. But she saw no tell-tale twinkle in his eye. And his face was perfectly straight and sober.

Presently, he said, "Look here—maybe you could do something to help."

"What do you mean?"

"Now there was a twinkle in his eye. 'I mean, if you would only doll up a little—as I once before suggested—you might become a rival of Irene's for Peter Moore's attention.'"

Cynthia felt a little dizzy. All this was becoming too much for her!

"I'm afraid you'll have to count me out," she said, as coolly as she could. "In the first place, I'm sure I couldn't compete with Irene! And in the second place, I was hired as your mother's secretary—not to lead a hand in the heart affairs of you and your sister!"

"I'm not asking you to lead a hand in mine."

"I know you're not. But I'm going to for just a moment!"

"What are you driving at?"

"May I suggest," said Cynthia, "that you stop worrying about your sister and Bruce Kerr, and do something for your mother yourself by concentrating on Beatrice Kerr?"

"I already have."

"Not very definitely. You devote more time to Cynthia Glenn's garden than you do to Miss Kerr. If you're so concerned about your mother and the little romances she's trying to build up, why don't you make her happy by paying some attention to the girl she has picked for her hand in the heart affairs of you and your sister?"

"Don't be silly!"

"I've a hunch she did," said Tommy, nodding his head. "But never mind. It doesn't matter. Since you're so interested, I might as well tell you that Beatrice and I had a heart-to-heart talk this afternoon, and decided that we couldn't make a go of it. I've dangled my money hand over her—pointed out what wonders it would do for that old castle of hers—but she turned me down. So you see, I've done my part."

"She did definitely turn you down?" Cynthia asked incredulously, remembering the conversation she had overheard between Beatrice and Bruce.

"Absolutely!"

Cynthia was thoughtful. She was tempted, for a moment, to tell Tommy about that conversation between the Kerrs—to tell him that Bruce might be more interested in Irene's money than he was in Irene, and that there was something fishy about the Kerr castle. Then, she decided against it. She wouldn't interfere. Let Irene take care of herself! She guiltily realized that she was partly prompted in this decision by a selfish reason. If she did or said anything to turn Irene definitely against Bruce, the girl might go after Peter that more intensify.

When she and Tommy reached home, they found his mother sitting on the front porch.

Mrs. Potter-Payne rose as Cynthia came up the steps and, taking her confidentially by the arm, accompanied her into the house. She seemed excited.

"Irene is driving to Charlotte with Bruce for dinner and the movies," she said, in a low tone. "I'm praying and hoping that they may get things settled tonight! A darkened movie house, my dear, is such a romantic spot."

She looked at Cynthia slyly, her eyes alight with hope. Poor, foolish woman thought Cynthia.

CHAPTER XII

AFTER an awkward pause, Cynthia said, "Miss Kate and I both wondered why you were so interested in seeing a picture of Cynthia Glenn."

"I suppose it was rather nervy of me, asking to see it—but I had a reason," said Tommy.

"Really?" Cynthia tried to sound casual, but she was agog with curiosity.

"Yes—I wanted to see if she really was the raving beauty she's reputed to be. I had a sort of half-baked plan to write her anonymously, suggesting that she'd better come home and look after her interests."

"What interests?"

"Peter Moore, of course. Mother is all up in the air over the way he's cutting Bruce out with Irene. I hate to see Mother disappointed, and I think that, if Moore were out of the picture, there's a good chance that Irene and Bruce would get together. Irene seemed pretty fond of Bruce up in New York. It's only been since she came down here that she's started cooling off toward him. And I've got a sneaking hunch that she's playing around with Moore only out of contrariness—you know, because she rebels at the way Mother keeps trying to throw her at Bruce."

"I see," said Cynthia. "So you thought that, if you could get Cynthia Glenn home, she would snatch Peter back from Irene?"

"Well... yes."

CYNTHIA smiled. "But I still don't see why you wanted to see a picture of Cynthia—why was a beauty or not. What difference does that make?" said Tommy. "A lot of difference!" said Cynthia. "Since seeing her picture, I'm not so sure it would help the situation for her to come home. In fact, it might have just the opposite effect."

"For heaven's sake, why?" gasped Cynthia.

"Because Irene is so much better looking than she is! So much better attractive looking! Moore seems then together for the first time, might start making comparisons. He might rush right into Irene's arms."

"Oh..." said Cynthia weakly. So Irene was "so much better looking" was she!

Then, she said defiantly. "You're being very unfair. I think. After all, you shouldn't judge Cynthia by one little snapshot of her. That happens to be a very poor picture of her! As a matter of fact, she's a very pretty girl!"

Tommy threw her a quick glance. "Is she?" he murmured.

I Just Found Out About Orange County

By MILLARD BROWNE

'Bug Hunters'

They aren't armed with the traditional magnifying glass and butterfly net, but a dozen skilled "bug hunters" are scurrying through Orange county these days looking for insects—and it might save the county millions of dollars.

The "bug hunters" are highly-trained inspectors in Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs' office, and the job they're just finishing is the annual inspection of the county's farms and groves. Between now and next year's inspection, more than $1,000,000 will have been spent by Orange county ranchers in controlling insects and other pests.

There are more than 10,000 varieties of insects in Orange county, but Tubbs' men are interested in only 200 or 300 of them. The rest are "uneconomic," which means they have no effect one way or the other on commercial crops.

Actually the agricultural inspectors aren't bug hunters, because most of the things you call "bugs" aren't. Insects classified as "bugs" are in the hemiptera (half-wing) order, and that comprises about 1-25 of the insect world.

Potato-bugs, for instance, aren't bugs. They're beetles, and beetle family coleoptera, or "sheath-wing" as it does harm to crops. Ladybirds, which help crops, and weevils, which definitely hurt, both are in this division.

That'll give you an idea of what an agricultural inspector has to know about scientific entomology. He has to be able to identify all 300-odd of the economic species in the area where he is working, also must know enough about the serious pests elsewhere so he'd know one if he found it here.

Tubbs' staff also must know the various orders of insects, and be able to tell if a new insect belongs to an order that is likely to be detrimental. The homoptera order, for example (includes scale, white flies, aphids) is nearly all harmful. Ladybirds (four-winged bees, ants, wasps) includes lots of beneficial insects, many of them parasites on the more serious pests.

How do they tell what insect larva will grow up to be? It's easy, if you know all the scientific characteristics—kind of hairs on its feet, shape of its head, etc.

Sample problem an inspector might have to cope with: He sees a "worm" in an orange, knows it's an insect larva. He examines more closely, finds it belongs in the lipopterous (flies) order, thus knows it's apt to be a "bad actor." By then, the inspector may have identified his find to the limit of his more general agricultural knowledge, so he'll bring it to the office, where a specialist can tell him exactly what it is. (Most inspectors have general knowledge of all phases of the agricultural commissioner's work, more specialized knowledge in one field.)

Serious pests have been averted in just this way. Some years ago, before such systematic checks were made, some new "bugs" found their way into California, nearly wrecked the citrus industry.

Worst in history was the cottony cushion scale, which threatened to do away with the entire industry before it was brought under control. "Parasites" and "predators" finally were found in another country, imported to attack it, and the cottony cushion scale today doesn't amount to much.

Most prevalent pest now is black scale, which affects citrus and a number of other hosts. Less prevalent but more difficult and expensive to kill are red and purple scale. Pests notably absent but constantly feared in California are the Oriental fruit moth, Mediterranean and Mexican fruit fly and Japanese beetle.

Tubbs is afraid it's just a matter of time before the Japanese beetle finds its way into this state. Prevalent all over the east, it's already been found as far west as Kansas City.

California's had narrow escapes from fruit fly invasions, too. Many have been picked up on shipments from Honolulu, and one Los Angeles inspector found one on some fruit a tourist had smuggled from Hawaii. (She bragged about bringing the fruit into the country, and he happened to hear of it.)

Because of danger of a disastrous infestation, agricultural officials are armed with lots of authority to take prompt action when they find a new pest. The state agricultural code sets up some authority specifically, quarantine orders give further authority, and the state director of agriculture is permitted to issue emergency orders when necessary.

If a new pest were found in Orange county tomorrow, Tubbs would issue a "hold order" notifying the property owner not to move any fruit; then his men would make an immediate survey to see how prevalent the pest is; the state office would be notified, a state specialist would come down to almost work, and in 48 hours

26 Fullerton Harrys, Aged From 30 To 82, Organize Club

FIRST ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT BREAKFAST

FULLERTON.—Webster says Harry means "to plunder, lay waste, harass."

Which might be beside the point, but it's just what Fullerton's Harrys (or should it be Harries?)—26 of them—did to a tasty breakfast, and each other, today at the first annual meeting of the first club of its kind in this or any nearby city.

Members of the new Harry club—ranging alphabetically from Arthur to Wilson, in age from 30 to 82, in birthplaces from California to Germany—gathered around the festive board at Kibel's restaurant. It was strictly social, about all the Harrys had in common was a first name, and the fact that they "work in or for Fullerton." That let in a couple of "hired men"—Senator Harry Westover of Santa Ana and Supervisor Harry Riley of Anaheim—on grounds "we're helping to pay their salaries, so they belong to Fullerton as much as anyone." Congressman Harry Shepard was invited, but he was campaigning on the desert and sent only a letter of felicitations.

Any ringers? There were two who didn't technically qualify, but the members figured they'd be all right. Harry Bell, who really is W. Harry Bell, has the Harry in the wrong part of his name, and margin, because he really is Harrison O. Easton.

Oldest Harry at the breakfast was Harry Shepherd, 82; youngest was Harry Crooke, jr., 30. Harry Maxwell, former mayor, was elected permanent chairman, and Harry Suters, mortician, was named ringmaster for the meeting. Chamber of Commerce Secretary Harry May was selected as "Harry harrier" to round up members for the July 1939 meeting. Some of the Harrys who didn't come to the breakfast, but who are expected to do so, are Harry Arthur and Harry Crooke, sr., had done most to perpetuate the Harry species—Arthur has 24 grandchildren, Crooke has a dozen children—but Ringmaster Suters ruled that probably had nothing to do with the meeting.

Corsages Presented W. C. T. U. Members

GARDEN GROVE.—The W. C. T. U. meeting Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. J. R. Wade complimented their hostess by presenting her a corsage in observance of her 27th wedding anniversary and both were presented gifts by the members.

Mrs. Lina Burns spoke on behalf of the union's national paper, the Union Signal and Mrs. Alice Hale discussed and distributed other literature. A guest, Mrs. Marion Alden of Corona, entertained with a solo. A dessert course was served by the hostess at the close of the session.

control measures would be started.

That's just what happened in 1931 when a citrus white fly was found here, and not a white fly has been found in Orange county since 1933. Same procedure was taken with a white snail infestation in 1933, but that was easier, since snails can't fly.

Duties of Tubbs' office have increased manifold in the past few years, but he insists none of the work is experimental. "We leave the experimenting to the University of California," he explains. "All of our work is along lines that have proven necessary as a protection for agriculture."

The agricultural commissioner has been given full authority to enforce the agricultural code, on the theory that an individual has a right to maintain his own place properly with full protection against his neighbor having a pest-infested crop right next door.

Farmers have given much better cooperation lately than ever before, Tubbs finds. These days, when his men finish inspecting a property (they grade infestations by their seriousness), ranchers almost invariably take the inspectors' advice on control measure. They've found it's cheaper to kill a light infestation now than to fight a heavy one later.

More Than 100 Varieties of Gourd Cultivated on One Plot by Garden Grove Man

By E. W. HOAG

The Gourd is one of the most peculiar and interesting of all vegetable growths.

On Garden Grove avenue one-half from the business center, is a miniature Gourd farm of more than one hundred varieties in one plot of less than one-half acre, owned and cultivated by Wm. P. West. Mr. West is a gourd enthusiast. For the past four years he has made a study of gourd life. He has gathered samples from numerous foreign countries, among which are Poland, Honolulu, Japan, Paraguay, South America, Jerusalem and Guatemala, Central America and China.

A few varieties of gourds are edible and are used as an article of food, but gourds are largely grown for ornamental purposes. The shapes they assume, the lengths, size, coloring and peculiar markings of some varieties, together with the hardness of rind, makes them susceptible to a beautiful polish.

They are used in some families as bottles, dippers, canteens, and even door stops, (by adding sand to hold them to the floor). But the unique shape some assume, the smooth tough hard surface they present, enables one to color and polish most attractively.

Mr. West has collected and grown many unique specimens which he has at his home. One sample, by supplying legs, represents a stork; one from Jerusalem, the Crown of Thorns. Then there is the Hercules Club, the Japa-

FULLERTON PLANS PICNIC

FULLERTON.—Traveling salesmen were beginning to shie away from Fullerton today, as preliminary plans were being laid for the Merchants association's annual employees' picnic.

The salesmen always get stuck when Fullerton merchants entertain their help.

According to custom, merchants start collaring every traveling man and jobber that drops in for a month preceding the picnic. By picnic time, they've collected an imposing array of "merchandise awards."

This year's picnic will be held some time in August, with every downtown employe invited.

Ewald Wegner New Chef-de-gare

Elected at a meeting in Garden Grove Wednesday night, Wegner will serve for one year as head of the 40 et 8, which is a branch of the American Legion, and has a membership throughout Orange county. He will be installed Aug. 17 in a ceremony at Garden Grove.

BALBOA WILL GROUP FLOATS

BALBOA.—Civic entries and floats representing various southland cities will be divided into four competitive groups for the annual Tournament of Lights here Aug. 20, Secretary Harry Welch of the Newport Harbor chamber of commerce announced today. Classification will be based on population, as follows: Cities of 50,000 or more; cities of 10,000 to 50,000; cities under 5000 to 10,000; and cities under 5000 population and unincorporated communities and city sub-divisions.

Hubbard Howe and John A. Siegel are assisting Secretary Welch on the civic float committee.

Garden Grove Club Hears 2 Members

Club gifts for past president Dr. J. C. Kraushaar's new baby daughter were presented by Dr. C. C. Violett and members observed H. Louis Lake's birthday anniversary by presenting him a cake. Visitors included Cap Hillyard of Santa Ana, Homer Wallace of Anaheim, R. E. Johnson and C. J. Clark.

Good Living is easy to afford

Mr. and Mrs. Burr Berry get in several sets of tennis a week. "We play on the public courts so our fun isn't expensive," says Mr. Berry. "We keep Brown Derby in the icebox to refresh us at home. This Pilsner is our kind of beer. It pleases like high-hat European brews yet sells at a down-to-earth price!"

Life is full of pleasurable things that cost little, happy families say. Brown Derby Beer is a case in point. A Pilsner that matches imported brews, it saves you money

American-brewed Brown Derby has the goodness of Old World Pilsner, famed as "king of beers." Experts both here and in Europe agree on this!

Brown Derby—like imported Pilsner—is a beer of sparkling clarity, with natural pin-point bubbles... carbonation that lasts while you enjoy your beer. Brown Derby's fine-spun Pilsner collar, deeply creamed, is beautiful to see.

And when you taste Brown Derby, you taste the Pilsner flavor—not sweet, not bitter, just marvelously "in-between." You get the Pilsner bouquet. Yet you save the import cost on European Pilsner!

"Like the old Bohemian Pilsner—I'd know that tang anywhere," writes Mr. R., about Brown Derby. A quarter century ago, in Wurtemberg, he loved the world's most celebrated brew

Smartest Fleas Go Hungry In Hollywood; $100 Will Be Paid for Their 'Boarder'

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—Sam and Sadie, ballyhooed as New York's smartest fleas, were in danger of going hungry today in the midst of opulent movieland.

Unless some red-blooded prop man at Paramount studio decided to qualify for a $100 bonus, there was no telling when Sam and Sadie would have another meal—perhaps not until they crawled down Claudette Colbert's back.

The studio was informed the fleas lived by drawing nourishment from the arms of trainers in a Forty-second street Manhattan flea circus.

Cats or dogs upset their digestion.

With volunteers lacking, $100 was posted as reward for saving Sam and Sadie from starvation while they make their debut in Miss Colbert's picture, "Zaza."

The return flight will be by way of Botwood, Newfoundland, and the Azores, with stops at both points, in another exploratory test of North Atlantic routes.

PLANE READY FOR HOP HOME

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. (AP)—The British pick-a-pack plane Mercury was groomed today for its return flight to Ireland Monday after opening a new and significant chapter of transatlantic air travel.

Capt. Donald C. T. Bennett brought the Imperial Airways experimental craft down here late yesterday, convinced he had demonstrated the feasibility of launching heavily laden planes in mid-air.

Fear Holds Back Recovery, View

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—A. E. Barit, president and general manager of Hudson Motor Car company, arrived here on a business tour and gave this observation: "Only a fear complex on the part of certain proportions of ultimate consumers, restraining normal buying, is holding back complete recovery. Proper understanding of conditions will soon overcome this. It is the job of the nation's salesmen to spread this understanding."

CARLOADINGS AT HIGH MARK

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Carloadings reached a high mark for 1938 during the week ended July 16.

The Association of American Railroads reported today that loadings totaled 602,300 cars, compared with 588,864 in the week ended July 2—the previous high for this year.

Officials attributed the increase largely to heavy movements of farm products, especially grain, and miscellaneous freight and merchandise in less than carload lots.

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP)—Harbert G. Jordan, 63-year-old stockman, faced a murder charge today in connection with the slaying of James N. White, 68, another rancher, in a feud over water in isolated Tuweep valley.

Jordan was brought to the county jail by Sheriff Ernest Graham from Bundyville, near where the killing occurred Tuesday. Officials said Jordan admitted the shooting.

THE LONE WOLF...

Like a ghost out of the night, a huge, lone wolf for nearly three years in the 1760s struck terror into the hearts of half a nation. Silently, without warning, "La Bete" killed again and again. La Bete's first killings in 1763 were limited to sheep, great numbers of them. After such massacres the huge footprints of a wolf were noticed. An attempt was made to capture this animal;

the death of several men resulted. The wolf's taste for human blood increased. He killed first the herders, then the sheep. On March 7, 1765, every man in the province of Languedoc—20,000 in all—gathered at 50 chosen points and started a drive to enclose La Bete. Surrounded, he fought his way out, killing one man. Noted hunters from every part of the world came to the Rhone to capture the famous animal, dead or alive. The hunt went on for seven weeks; time and again La Bete was surrounded, only to escape. Finally, on Sept. 20, 1765, the great wolf was shot by a soldier and impaled by another—but La Bete killed them both. The dogs held him to earth, and finally La Bete was killed. Tomorrow: The jazz band that stopped a bank run!

Sky Jalopies

Three cheers for Douglas Corrigan. Aye, six cheers; loud ones. And three more for the "junk plane" that carried him across the Atlantic.

Now that the shouting is over, here are some "buts": But Corrigan's thrilling, even heroic, example must not be permitted to set a precedent under which swarms of planes from the junkheaps of aviation take to the skies and clutter the commercial and pleasure skyways with danger and disaster.

America, land of the free, has carried the ideal of freedom to such a forward point that it grants freedom to any citizen or guest to drive down the public highway on any kind of a vehicle that will roll, despite the imminent probability that it will fly to pieces in the path of traffic that it making 50 miles an hour or better.

Up to this time, although private flying shows a sad and serious record of wrecks and tragedies, no admitted "junk plane" or "jalopy of the skies" has won so prominent a place for itself.

With this new and eminent example to lure them on, America's daring amateur skywaymen may, unless restrained, scatter parts of sky jalopies from hither to yon across the landscape, making life on the old planet ever more hazardous than it is at present.

Finland gets the Olympic games. You'll remember Finland as that fine nation that minds its own business and pays its debts.

The Santa Monica Plan

It is a worthy objective, surely, to try to rid the streets and highways of drunk drivers. The "Santa Monica plan," however, embodies a dangerous precedent that might be more harmful to the public welfare than the difficulty it sets out to cure.

"Police Chief Charles L. Dice," quoting a news story, "claiming drunk drivers cause most major accidents, established 'drunk blockades' of breath-sniffing officers at certain strategic intersections today. They stop all motorists and take the intoxicated ones off to jail."

The theory of such a plan is exactly this: "Every man a drunk driver until he proves himself innocent." Which is straight across the circle from the basic American code of freedom that every man is innocent until proven guilty, and shall not be molested in his goings and comings until there is at least a logical supposition that he is culpable.

Under the Santa Monica plan it would become ultimately possible to establish searching stations for pedestrians at every street corner, compulsory fingerprint bureaus between corners, and nightly check-ups to make certain each citizen was in exactly the place the police chief considered it proper for him to be.

Even Russia, Germany and Italy have not as yet seen fit to restrain the liberties of their subjects to such an extent.

How much better off Japan would have been if she had concentrated on the Olympic games instead of the war in China!

A Marriage Puzzle

Stan Laurel, funny-faced movie man, and his new wife just keep on going through marriage ceremonies. Their latest wedding ceremony scheduled was their fourth.

"Just because we love each other and because we've been separated a long time," explains the comparatively new Mrs. Laurel.

Which is all acutely romantic, but Hollywood will wonder if by chance they are trying to immunize themselves against attacks of the divorce bug that is always prevalent and uncommonly voracious in those parts.

Even that would be a laudable purpose, but there is still another ground for speculation: Suppose even a four or five or six-ply marriage doesn't work, would Stan and his wife be compelled to go through four or five or six separate divorce suits, or could just one divorce action sever a whole skein of marital knots?

Understand, we're not wishing Cupid or the Laurels any hard luck—but Hollywood is Hollywood.

General Franco announces he has won the war in Spain. That's going to make the loyalists pretty mad when they hear it.

Brass, Nazi Style

There's an old story about a man asked to define the colloquialism "brass."

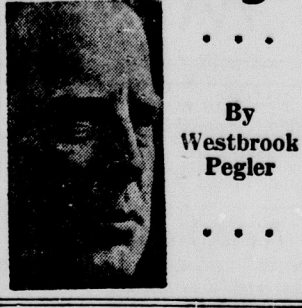

"Brass," he replied, "is best exemplified by the lad who, being tried for murdering his father and mother, pleaded for leniency on the grounds that he was an orphan."

A modern version came out of Berlin yesterday. The German stock market, after a collapse partly caused by the forced selling of Jewish properties, rebounded on announcement that Jews would not be forbidden to own securities. The new-style "brass" is exemplified in this item:

"It was hoped the announcement on Jews would induce them to appear again as buyers, thus helping overcome the bourse depression."

Most of us know what our goal is, but we have a bad time finding the road to it.

Fair Enough

NEW YORK.—Now that the names of the venereal diseases are practically household words and the government has undertaken to fight them, it should be permissible to consider the reasons for the attitude of those doctors who either refuse to handle such practice at all or demand cash on the line from venereal patients before they will undertake to treat them. Such conduct may seem brutal and might even be construed as a violation of the doctor's oath, but wait.

When the devil is sick the devil a monk would be, and it is a truth of many such invalids that they are almost pious, if not quite so, in their fright when they first answer sick call. But it seems to be a characteristic of both diseases that confidence and optimism return when the outward symptoms are checked. Thereafter the patient is likely to neglect to report for further treatment, violate instructions as to diet and other matters and to forget to pay the doctor. Ingratitude is more pronounced in such patients than in sufferers from other maladies, although the doctors encounter enough of it in all other lines of practice.

Doctors have no illusions about the solemn resolutions of patients, knowing that fear wears off and that even medical students and internes who have been viewing the most terrifying consequences may go out on their nights off and take the same chances that an ignorant bum takes because he knows no better.

Knowledge of the risks, even past experience, is no sure, permanent deterrent, and the mature medical man develops a hard-boiled, practical, but not necessarily cynical, attitude toward venereal patients.

Some of them simply deliver such patients over to specialists who have a straight business scale of treatment, demanding a certain amount in advance for further payments, always slightly in advance of the course, as treatment goes on, so that the patients will not lose interest. Many others in general practice have a flat rate for the course, payable in advance. Some cases require more treatment than others, but that is unpredictable. They average up.

On this basis of the experience of private doctors a considerable percentage of the patients who will take advantage of the public facilities will drop from the clinic rolls as soon as they think they are out of the woods. They will feel better and they will decide that, even though they may not be cured to the satisfaction of the doctors, they are cured enough. They will then go their merry way, many of them with plenty of money for down payments on new cars or for liquor or non-essentials, and eventually they come down again of their own poison or of re-infection.

Start All Over

When they report back to start over again the public doctors will have no choice in the matter. They will have to begin at the beginning, even though they feel sure that the patients will drift away again after certain early results have been obtained. To make sure of complete treatment it would be necessary to impound such patients or place them under bonds which charity cases could not afford to post.

Medical science and society probably will be able to diminish venereal disease by teaching prophylaxis and by treatment, but there will always be a proportion—and a rather large proportion, at that—of infected persons who will refuse to go down the line and get cured, because they are too shiftless and irresponsible. The restrictions interfere with their convenience and, anyway, the treatment is free and will still be free if the disease should kick back at some future time, as it doubtless will.

This is one line of medical work which most doctors in private practice aside from the venereal specialists, will be glad to waive over to the public facilities. The venereals are not all but too many of them—bad patients, bad pay and a few cuts below the responsible and respectable grade in their communities.

The doctor spends much time and money learning his business. He has to pay rent and buy groceries and shoes for the baby, and it naturally burns him up to see his venereals with unpaid bills on his books buying drinks for ladies or driving up Main street in new second-hand jalopies.

A petition, signed by a majority of the taxpayers on Broadway, was read to the city council urging the city to pave the street. In regard to this matter, the aldermen thought there should be competition in bidding for the proposed surfacing of the street.

The Pacific Electric company informed the council that it would waive its right to lay a double track on North Main street, from a point near Santa Clara avenue to the city limits.

"The present building ordinance is too long and cumbersome, and the city clerk should be instructed to procure copies of such ordinances from other cities, with the view of making the ordinance of this city more as it should be," one resolution read before the council stated. It was adopted.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—Henry Wallace is now undertaking probably the largest piece of salesmanship since the time of Noah—to persuade all the wheat-exporting nations of the world to adopt an AAA plan for crop curtailment.

This is behind the recent Wallace announcement for an ever-normal international granary for wheat. This means that Canada, Argentina, Australia, Hungary, Russia, and Yugoslavia must be sold on the New Deal idea of storing their wheat surpluses when they have them.

Even more difficult, it means selling these six countries on the New Deal curtailment plan which U. S. farmers have known since 1933 and which economists of the world have watched with mixed amazement and doubt.

The ever-normal granary and production control go hand in hand. No country can be expected to hold its surplus off the market if the next crop and the next after that continue to add to the surplus. There must be control at the source or the whole thing breaks down.

So Wallace is out to sell to the world the agricultural economy which in five years he has sold to the United States. He does not expect all six customers to buy at the first offer. Argentina is not even present at the international wheat conference in London to which he pulled out after export quotas imposed in 1933, and has been sulking on the sidelines ever since. But there will be other conferences.

Australia is likely to be Wallace's first convert, with Russia and Canada following—if Canada has the big crop now indicated. If Argentina does not get over her sulk, she may be brought in by the scruff of the neck. Great Britain, Argentina's best market, can make her behave.

Wallace's most effective ally, however, will be Mother Nature. She continues to lavish sun and rain upon the wheat fields of the world and to turn out crops of 4 billion bushels, any joint action to stabilize prices will be welcome.

Musolini and Hopkins

Harry Hopkins attended a dinner party at the Italian embassy the other day, and when somebody asked a question about the relief problem in Italy, he said: "Everybody's on relief in Italy. They've got relief projects all over the place—roads, schools, everything. The government runs the show for fair."

Then he added wryly, "And the nice part about it is they don't get kicked all over the lot for doing it."

Immigrants' Enemy

Among his colleagues on Capitol Hill, Senator Reynolds of North Carolina is noted for his gay good nature and frank grandstanding. But to some 4,500 aliens, the denizens of North Carolina is a grim nemesis.

For four years he has waged a one-man filibuster against legislation that would relieve them and their American wives and American-born children of the dread menace of deportation.

These are the immigration bureau's so-called "hardship" cases. That is, while deportable because of some technical violation of the strict entry laws, they are decent, law-abiding heads of families who would suffer if they were evicted. Of the 4,500 total, 1,800 are Europeans, 900 Canadians and the remainder from Mexico.

The labor department has repeatedly sought to amend the existing laws so as to strengthen its hand to get rid of undesirable aliens who entered legally, and to give it discretion regarding those who entered illegally. The president has approved, other alien foes in congress have been won over, the house has passed a bill and the senate immigration committee has okayed it. But "Our Bob" has steadfastly blocked the way to its enactment into law.

Reynolds frankly admits that it is a matter of politics with him. Returning to the senate after his 2-to-1 renomination victory early in June, he exuberantly counseled Senator "Mildred" Tydings, who faces a desperate fight in Maryland. "Lay off issues, Millard, and talk about the alien within our gates. That's the stuff that gets them."

But while Reynolds, in the closing hours of the recent session, again harpooned a house-passed bill that would have given the immigration bureau its long-sought legislative authority, there was quietly put through another resolution that may give the 4,500 "hardship" cases a temporary reprieve until the end of the next regular session of congress.

The far-reaching nature of this resolution is known only to a few. Offered by Senator Lewis Schwellenbach of Washington, it authorizes the immigration bureau to hold up the deportation of any alien whose case is the subject of legislation acted on favorably by either the house or senate immigration committees. The intent of the measure was to stay action on some 25 cases for which separate, or so-called "private" bills, had been introduced.

Immigration authorities have now discovered that the wording of the resolution is so broad that it probably covers all the "hardship" cases pending an official opinion from the attorney general, they are saying nothing about this publicly, but their own lawyers are convinced that the last minute resolution gives the tragic 4,500 another chance to stave off Bob Reynolds' determined campaign to deport them.

OUT OF HIS CLASS

Once, after speaking of Andrew Carnegie's charities, Sir Thomas Lipton was moved to tell of one of his own early acts of philanthropy.

"I remember when I was just starting in business," he said. "I was very poor and making every sacrifice to enlarge my little business. My only assistant was a boy of 14, faithful, willing and honest. One day when he thought I was absent, I heard him complain to an acquaintance that his clothes were so shabby that he was ashamed to attend church services."

"I could realize the boy's plight; and after considering the matter for a while, I extracted a sovereign from my carefully hoarded savings and bought the boy a warm, durable, and neat suit of blue. The following day the boy did not appear at work. Later in the day I encountered his mother on the street and inquired the cause of his absence."

"Why, Mr. Lipton," the lady replied, "Jimmy looks so respectable, thanks to you sir, that I thought I would send him to some better place and see if he couldn't get a job. That's where he is now." — Christian Science Monitor.

The Mailbag

Public opinion, or what somebody in office imagines to be public opinion, is our ruler. If public opinion is active, the politicians and people sit up and take notice. There is a definite need for outspoken talking and thinking on public matters. Honest, intelligent fair discussion of our problems is immensely useful. So that every citizen may have his say and contribute to the formation of public opinion, The Journal invites letters to The Mailbag. Please limit communications to 350 words. The editor reserves the right to shorten all letters in excess of that length.

WHERE MONEY'S GOING

To the Editor: If you will look on page 51 of the July issue of Monthly Review of Credit and Business Conditions, second federal reserve district, you will see a chart showing "average monthly volume of domestic corporate security issues for new capital and for refunding." The figures are as follows (in millions of dollars):

1936 quarter—Refunding: 1st, 313; 2d, 438; 3d, 168; 4th, 300. 1937 quarter—1st, 221; 2d, 111; 3d, 57; 4th, 32.

1937 quarter—New capital: 1st, 38; 2d, 57; 3d, 88; 4th, 118. 1937 quarter—1st, 111; 2d, 140; 3d, 75; 4th, 45.

Please notice that except for the second, third and fourth quarters of 1937 refunding exceeds by a considerable margin new capital issues.

While new capital actually invested in the construction of new factory buildings and the purchase of new equipment gives employment, that investment used to pay off previous issues gives none. Likewise, corporate surplus used to pay off old loans, while it reduces the capital structure of a corporation, creates no new employment.

I mention this because now and then I find editorials to the effect that taxes on surplus restricts business expansion and stifles employment. Only to the extent that a tax hinders new capital investment in actual labor creating employment is this true. By and large industry generally is acknowledged as operating at considerably less than present capacity.

If this is so, then the little reason for industry to make labor-creating investments.

One of the sights of Canada that tourists do not see is a bog. If you were not correctly informed by a naturalist bog-lover, you might think it was a swamp or marsh. But this one is an honest-to-goodness peat bog with sphagnum moss just soaking with water, orchids, plants that eat insects and a lot more.

Water, too. Water by the shoeful squirts and squishes at every step. That is one reason for going into a bog—to get your feet wet.

Mer Bleue is ten miles east of Ottawa. It is seven miles long and covers some 12½ square miles. A sort of relic of the great ice ages, it represents the filling up of a glacial lake. The trees and plants fall in the flora flourishes and sinks down, building up a great mat of stuff that becomes peat, ounger cousin to coal. Tramp through the bog and there may be 20 or 40 feet of very wet, semi-solid lake below you.

The difference between a bog and a swamp or marsh? A bog is acid, thanks to the decaying vegetation. Litmus paper is a good way to find out, if any scientific informant was not spoofing me.

A group of bog enthusiasts are included in the Federation of Ontario Naturalists. They wage war on Mer Bleue for the sake of pleasure and science. It is great sport finding unusual orchids, bright red or watching an insect get caught in the sticky, hairy clutches of a pitcher plant or the dainty sundew. There are birds and insects in abundance. Bogs are not much good agriculturally, which is fortunate. There is more chance that they will be left as they are for life in the wild to continue in them as it has for ages.

Philosophy

John Hays Hammond in his very interesting autobiography tells stories of Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft which clearly illustrates what it can mean to make the other fellow feel important.

He says that just before Roosevelt threw his hat into the ring for the 1912 presidential nomination, he was making a trip through the West. A rousing reception was given him in Wyoming, and a long line of admirers passed to shake hands and greet him.

Someone standing by Roosevelt's side whispered that a certain man approaching was a great admirer of the colonel, who undoubtedly remembered him.

The colonel whispered back, "No, I can't recall him."

"He's been at the White House, and lunched with you. His name's Watson."

"Oh yes, I know who he is now. How many children has he, five?"

"No, he has six—another was born a few days ago."

When Watson reached Roosevelt, both his hands were grasped and pumped heartily up and down. "My dear fellow, I'm so glad to see you again. I shall never forget the delightful hour we spent together in Washington. How are those five, oh no, I believe you have six children now?"

Watson, who was popular and politically influential in Wyoming, was from that moment an ardent Rooseveltian.

A few months after Roosevelt's tour, Taft was making a tour. As it happened, the former official advisor of Roosevelt was with Mr. Taft. He saw an old Taft admirer approaching and whispered, "Mr. President, there's a man approaching whom you certainly remember."

Taft looked at the man. "No, I don't," he said, "what's his name?"

The reporter murmured it into his ear.

Taft reiterated. "No I don't seem to place him."

"Why he's dined with you at the White House."

When the man's turn came, Taft took his hand in a friendly way and beamed upon him as he said, "They tell me I ought to remember you, but, bless my soul, I cannot recall you at all!"

The former Taft admirer, who was a prominent politician in the state of Washington, went away and turned his strength against Taft.

Now, Taft was just as sincerely friendly as Roosevelt. The difference between the two men lay in the fact that Roosevelt understood what touched a man's heart. Intensely fond of his own children, he knew that man would be pleased that his family was remembered, and he knew it would give the man a feeling of importance if he mentioned them. If Taft had followed Roosevelt's example and merely reminded him of the existence of a movie-kiss limit.
